PLAN NON-PARTISAN STATE CONVENTION

IF IDEA IS CARRIED OUT WILL REVOLUTIONIZE WISCONSIN POLITICS.

WILL NAME OWN TICKET

Taxpayers' League Behind the Proposed Gathering.—Taxes the Slogan of Battle.

With E. L. Phillips of Milwaukee making quiet but effective excursions through the state, to stir up sentiment in favor of the holding of a genuine republican state convention in Milwaukee some time during the coming summer with former Governor Howard writing bitter denunciations of La Follette and the reformers; the democrats at sea as whether to have a state gathering or not, and La Follette planning to return to Wisconsin to reorganize his faction of the republican party against the common foe democracy, it is interesting to note that the Taxpayers' League is already in the field with a definite plan for a non-partisan state convention to be held in Milwaukee early in the summer.

The Plan.

George P. Mathes in the Milwaukee Sentinel writes of the proposed meeting by saying that it will be a non-partisan state convention called to meet some time in June, probably in Milwaukee, by the Taxpayers' League, which has been conducting an investigation into the different state departments and which has been responsible for the county conventions that have been held throughout the state to protest against high taxes.

There will be a meeting held in Milwaukee within a few days where representatives from the league from the counties in the state will gather to discuss the situation and issue a call for a state convention for the purpose of nominating a state ticket and transacting such other business as may come before the convention.

The preliminary meeting has already been decided on. This state meeting will be held at the residence of this city, who is one of the leaders in the non-partisan movement instituted by the league.

May Be Held in May.

The exact date of the preliminary meeting has not been decided on, Mr. Pierce said, but it would probably be held early in May. At that time, he said, representatives from the league organization in the different counties in the state would gather in the Cream City.

"There is no need for further county conventions to protest against the high taxes," said Mr. Pierce. "The real road to relief is to show how the taxpayers of a state stand on the question of high taxes. The people are aroused to such an extent that there is no further need for formal protests, though it is possible some counties may yet hold conventions."

"There will unquestionably be a state convention held. This matter has been taken up and as planned now there will be a meeting held in Milwaukee within a short time for the purpose of issuing a call for a state convention."

All Counties Represented.

"This meeting will be composed of one or two representatives from every county in the state. They will draft and issue a call for a state convention. This will be strictly non-partisan in its nature, and its organization is composed of democrats and republicans of all shades and opinions, as well as bull moosers and others. The ticket that will, beyond any doubt, be nominated by the state convention, will also be strictly non-partisan. This movement is not in the interest of any political party or any faction of any political party. We have no interest in politics beyond getting a legislature and state officials that we will know will reduce the present high taxes. Beyond that our organization does not care to go and will not go."

What Can We Do?

"What can we do if we nominate a state ticket. There are two things that we can do. First we can say to the different parties: Here is our ticket. If you wish to adopt it you can do so. If neither sees fit to do this we can run it as an independent ticket. It is possible we might not be able to elect the whole ticket in this manner but I can assure you that we would be able to elect the governor which we might nominate. However, it is an open question whether or not a cross at the head of the column under the legislature is not sufficient to carry the entire list of nominees. But this is a question for future discussion."

To Meet in Milwaukee.

"The principal thing just now is that we will without doubt call a state convention to which delegates will be elected from each county in the state. I should say this convention would be held in Milwaukee, as this city can be reached readily from all parts of the state, but that question will be decided at the preliminary meeting when the call will be issued."

Counties which have held conventions provided for such a contingency by electing delegates to attend a state convention in case such a convention would be called, in other counties, it will be easy to elect the requisite number of delegates.

There is no question that this determination of the league to call a state convention will wake up the politicians throughout the state as nothing else has done for years. While it was admitted that a state convention was the logical conclusion of the Tax Payers' league movement, said Mr. Pierce's announcement on Friday the matter was still in doubt.

Ignore Senate Race.

Whether the league will also nominate a candidate for United States senator was not stated. It is possible that this will not be done, as the leaders wish to confine the movement closely to state politics and politicians and not permit national questions to creep in at any time.

In the meantime, L. B. Nagler, assisting secretary of the state continues to sing the swan song of high taxes that taxes are not really high when compared with those in adjoining states. This in the face of the concrete instances which have been given where taxes on farms in Wisconsin have been found to be 100 percent higher than were the taxes on adjoining farms in Illinois, for instance.

Senator Howard Teasdale, who in Milwaukee, pleaded guilty to the so-called impeachment that he would be a candidate for re-nomination as senator from the thirty-first district. The senator said that he had so far not heard of any candidate in opposition.

WHITEWATER MAN TO DIRECT PLAYGROUNDS

Walter Cox of Whitewater to Be Director of Playgrounds During Coming Summer.

Janesville's two playgrounds will be opened the last week in June, with Walter Cox of Whitewater in charge. This is the arrangement made by the special committee of the board of education, composed of Prof. Buel, E. J. Hammons and Francis Grant, and will be accepted by the board at its next regular meeting. At this time the question of where other playgrounds are to be established will be taken up, and it is probable that one will be equipped at the Washington school and also at the Adams. This will give the city four places for play, the Jefferson and Webster being already in shape. Mr. Cox, the new director of playgrounds, comes to Janesville well recommended. He is a graduate of the Indianapolis school for physical training and last year had charge of the Whitewater playgrounds. He has an excellent recommendation for character and efficiency and is much interested in the work. The success of the playgrounds last season shows their popularity and it is expected that the other two will be ready for use by the time Mr. Cox arrives, if it is decided to locate them there. There will be other instructors at the various grounds, but will all work under Mr. Cox's direction.

NEW MANAGERS TAKE CHARGE OF BREWERY

Buob Brewing Concern Will Henceforth Be Known as Badger-State Brewing Company.

Under a reorganization of the Buob Brewing Company which has just been effected, the concern will be known as the Badger State Brewing Company, articles of incorporation having been secured at the secretary of state's office. The officers of the new company are: Peter Meer, president; Albert Bunte, vice president; and L. H. Steiber, secretary and general manager. All these men have been connected with the brewing industry for many years and have valuable experience in the business.

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 5—THRIFT—THE MAINSTAY OF THE NATION

"When he threw himself so energetically into the movement for the conservation of her natural resources, Theodore Roosevelt, with statesmanlike pertinacity, compelled the nation to heed his warning and by dint of persistent reiteration awoke the public conscience to a realization of conditions that were fast leading to bankruptcy and ruin."—The Literary Digest.

Thrift in the individual and thrift in the government are more closely related than is often realized. Here is a great truth, a truth which it is high time several million people were beginning to realize. They cry for economy, for the elimination of waste in government, and they do not practice economy, they do not eliminate waste in their business or in their private affairs. Only as we as a people become individually more thrifty—that is, more saving, more economical, more conserving—can we expect our councils, our legislatures, our congress to be likewise.

Consider thrift in its relation to the industries of the country. If everybody should spend his entire income every year there never would be any capital for investment beyond that which is already invested; no new enterprises could be floated, and improvements of all kinds, public and private, would be at an end. The world's supply of new capital is simply the margin between the world's income and its expenditures.

Nor are the benefits of thrift to be measured wholly in terms of economics. The steadiness, the industry, the sobriety, the respect for property, which are fostered among thrifty and frugal people are political virtues that make for stability and permanence of government.

The habitual spendthrift is a menace to the community and the nation; the careful citizen, guided by a sense of the true value of property is a safeguard to our institutions. Habits of extravagance tend to make trouble in the family, the community, the nation.

An "American Society for Thrift" has been organized in Chicago for the avowed purposes of "promoting nationally the individual thrift which is the basis of good citizenship and community prosperity." Men of prominence, including Governors of several states are back of this movement, which aims to advocate a broad and sensible view of economy, pointing out to the people that, as a great English statesman said, "Thrift is not meanness, but management."

The continued rise in the cost of living, unaccompanied to any great extent by a corresponding increase of individual incomes, is making many an American family right-about face in the matter of personal and domestic economy.

Perhaps the new tariff will reduce the cost of living eventually, but it hasn't yet. Possibly governmental investigating commissions may lead to that consummation but there are no signs of it yet. And no other panacea has been found for it. Apparently, therefore, for the present at least, there is no hope of abating the steady rise in the price of everyday necessities, and, so far, no way has been found to beat the high cost of living except to stop living so high.

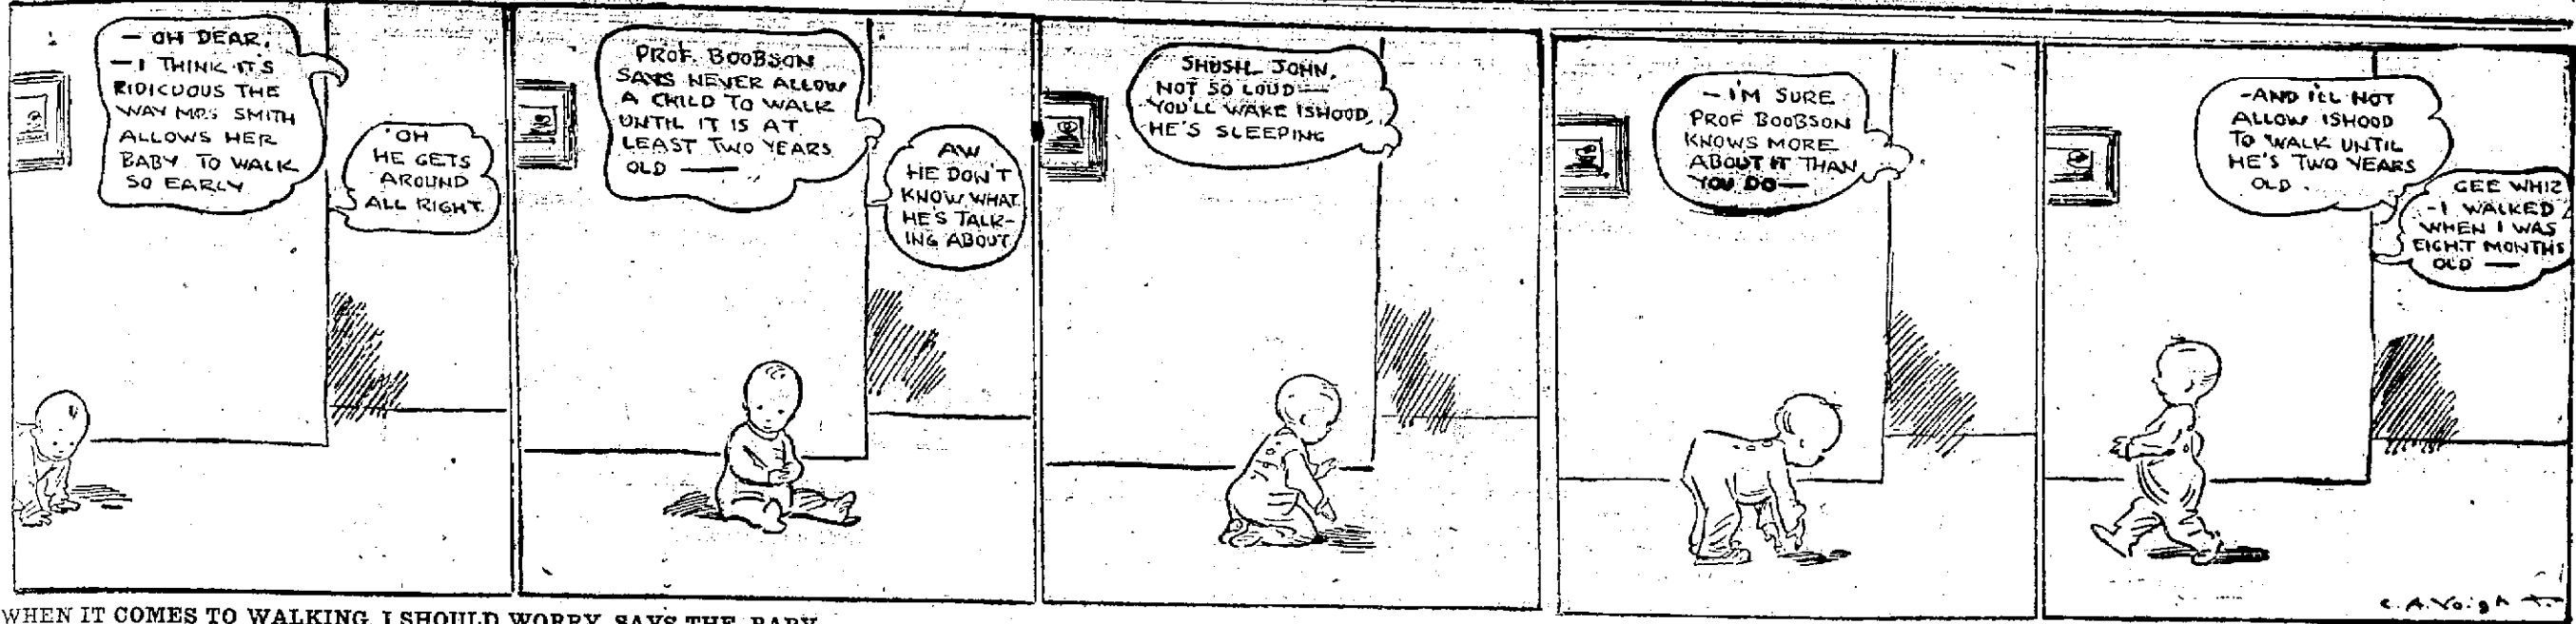

Is it not quite possible that in good old fashioned thrift may be found the solution of the difficult problem of living up to modern standards under modern conditions?

COOK'S AMERICANS WIN FROM MERRICK'S SQUAD

The Americans gave the semi-pros a trouncing last night, for after shading the five lead by Merrick in the first chapter, they let off the brakes in the last game and in a landslide crushed the match with the honors tucked away with a lead of 208 points.

The semi-pros were afflicted with the spring fever and the numerous splits were safe last night for none of the players were able to pick up their team. Merrick's score in the last game was the only redeeming feature of the whole show, for he rolled off a 200 score for individual honors.

Monday night Abraham's Big Six will meet Richards' Janesville Feds.

JANESVILLE BOWLERS CAPTURE BIG MATCH

Y. M. C. A. Quintet Down Lake Geneva Association Men, Rolling Two 800 Games, Winning by 218 Pins.

Charles Atkinson's experienced bunch of champion bowlers from Lake Geneva Y. M. C. A. proved to be steady enough at the game, but superior rolling in the pinches proved their downfall by 218 pins, last evening, in the big match at the Y. M. C. A. alleys. The Janesville quint, captained by Albert Huebel, began the game somewhat frightened, feeling that they would be cleaned up by the Lake men, but it only took a little extra nerve which they held in reserve, and they were off. The visitors were outclassed, in the first two games, the Janesville men counting 800 scores in both sets.

Skelly Hill was the high scorer for the evening, topping over a 204 game in the first round. Frank Hayes was second with 185. The match was witnessed by a good number of enthusiasts, who were anxious to see some real rolling. The line-ups and score follows:

SEPTEMBER MORN.

Among the very latest sensational dances of the year, "September Morn" is coming in vogue in this country. It is the "Shark Swish Dip"—and while it belongs to the Tango family, it is far more difficult to perform and deliciously entertaining to view. Each couple dips sideways with the motion of a shark turning in the water to seize a smaller fish. Everyone is doing it since some marine moving picture showed a shark attacking a scene in which a shark caught a fish and it was initiated into a Tango interpolation. Hence the "Shark Swish Dip" which is one of the many new, delightful dances introduced during the action of the satisfying component of music, beauty and fun called "September Morn," a new, funny play by Arthur Gillespie, who has introduced a string of prettily tuned lyrics and happy lines. The music is by Aubrey Stauffer and the whirling dancing numbers Virgil Bennett is responsible for. Dave Lewis, the well-known comedian, and a company of fifty keep the fun at white heat.

Myra Coverdale, the American Gaby Deslys, Frances Kennedy, and the smartest, swiftest company of the season come direct from the LaSalle Opera House, Chicago, to amuse and dazzle with the brightest comedy with tunes of the decade—"September Morn."

NO BASEBALL POOLS IS POLICE ORDERS

Janesville Will Continue to Prohibit Pooling of Money on Baseball Games in Janesville.

"There will be no baseball pools in Janesville," declared Acting Chief of Police Peter Champion, and Mayor Fathers this morning, and orders have been given out for stricter regulations on all billiard and pool halls in this city.

Two years ago the baseball pools were stopped, when the system had reached such a height that several hundred dollars was put into the numerous pools held at the cigar stores and billiard halls. On the opening of the baseball season this year these orders were given out and the police declare that they will be carried out and any violations will be prosecuted. The fascination of playing these pools proved great last year and it was not uncommon to find that at least fifty dollars were in some of the pools on the total number of runs scored in a day's games.

With these orders the owners of the billiard halls were also instructed to keep minors from playing and adhere to the closing hours.

SPRING IS SURLEY HERE; GRADE BALL TEAMS CLASH IN FIRST GAME OF SEASON.

There can be no doubt about the arrival of spring now. Janesville youngsters in their first ball game of the season today demonstrated that the bug has arrived and will doubtless remain until the snow flies. The fourth and fifth grades of the Jefferson school have the honor of the first contest on the diamond, the victory going to the lower grade youngsters by a 15 to 12 score. The line-up of the winning team is as follows: Alter, capt.; Earle, C.; Burpee, 1st; Culver, 2nd; Smith, 3rd; Cookson, 2nd; Mohns, field.

JUNIORS GAVE ANNUAL FROM LAST EVENING

Edgerton, April 18.—The most pleasant social event of the season was carried off last evening in the Academy Hall, when the junior class of the high school gave their annual prom.

The hall was beautifully decorated in King's blue and white, the junior colors, and purple and white, the senior class colors. The orchestra platform was decorated in lattice work effect.

Hoevel's orchestra from Madison furnished the inspiration, an agreeable concert from half past eight until half past nine which was very much enjoyed.

The party was chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. E. H. H. and dancing continued until one o'clock, which consisted of the waltz and two-step and several of the new dances.

Much credit is due to the untiring efforts of the arrangement committee, Fred Kethoge, Nellie Bradley, Verna Tall, Morris Hitchcock and Francis Curran, for the success of the event.

About one hundred and seventy-five couples were present, and among those from out of town were the following: John Neuman, Madison; Carroll Coon, Milton; Harold Keller, Whitewater; Harry Shearer, Madison; Wm. Krueger, Madison; W. E. Ponichen, Madison; Harold Hanson, Wm. Rasmussen, Harry Halverson, Lloyd Leary, Theodore Gullickson, Jack Reector, Emil Nelson, Paul Tannart, Stoughton.

Roger Mooney, who has been spending his vacation with his mother, returned to St. Viator's College at Bourbonnais, Illinois, this morning.

Little Martha Judevine of Baraboo is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Brown for a week.

Miss Lena Flensberg went to Lake Geneva this morning to visit friends over Sunday.

Mrs. N. Larson and daughter Netta left for Hampshire, Illinois, this morning, where they will visit the latter's sister, Mrs. A. Lietner, for a few days.

Mrs. Henry Johnson spent yesterday in Janesville.

Sue McMannus of Janesville was a caller here yesterday.

Dr. Willard McClesney and wife spent yesterday in Janesville.

M. J. Schmidt was a Janesville caller yesterday.

C. Clarke of Madison was a business caller here yesterday.

Mrs. T. A. Ellingson and Ed Grossman were callers in Janesville yesterday.

Miss Vera Lynts of Janesville attended the prom last evening.

"BIG GEORGE" Big Value 5c Cigar

The law won't allow us to make a larger cigar for a nickel—the law of quality. Any size is too big if the taste is wrong. No brand is right if you don't get the smoke you like; and the

has the flavor. It's a mellow, rich smoke, made of well matured tobacco, a blend of filler and wrapper that becomes a harmony the moment it is lighted. A value that five cents seldom gets—a larger size, full-made, solid, substantial cigar, which suits most men down to the last half inch. It stands in the first rank because it is never rank. Found in every case in town and a head in every case.

TRY to find out when you buy a motor car what percentage of its price is represented in actual intrinsic value—and what percentage of it goes to pay interest on bond issues, dividends or excessive capitalization and heavy selling expense.

The Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company has no indebtedness of any kind—its capital is only $250,000—it has ample resources to enable it to manufacture most economically.

Hence it is able to put a dollar of actual value into the Paige car for every dollar of its selling price.

You will appreciate this at once when you check up the Paige car point by point with cars of higher price.

You will note for instance the bigness and beauty of the Paige design—the strength and character represented in its outward appearance—

You will be delighted with the richness of the finish and the quality of the upholstery.

Going deeper into structural features you will find the multiple disc cork insert clutch—the silent chain drive to motor shaft—the large unit electric lighting and starting system—the compact unit power plant and the extremely high grade equipment—all features you ordinarily expect to find only in cars costing $2000 or more.

And after you have gone this far you will be fully ready for a demonstration and an order blank.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The lessons of the late election are worth studying from a moral standpoint, for while Janesville continues to be a license city, the change of sentiment throughout the country is so pronounced that the brewers and distillers have occasion for the alarm expressed, while the friends of temperance have reason to rejoice.

The long list of towns and cities in Illinois, which voted dry for the first time, speak volumes for the women voters who contributed so freely to the desired result, and answers for all time the argument about how women will vote on moral questions when given the opportunity.

It is to be regretted that the make-up of Wisconsin is such that univer-suffrage is not likely to be adopted until it becomes a federal law, and this is bound to come in time.

The vote in Janesville is significant because of the majority which favored license and regulation to an attempt at prohibition, but this majority is by no means expressive of a wide open town sentiment; and the saloon men will make a grave mistake, if they so construe it.

If the no-license campaign had been started six months earlier, the outcome would have been different. The fate of the saloon for the future is very largely in the hands of the men engaged in the business. Janesville must be a law-respecting and a law-observing town, for this is what the people will demand.

If the council is wise, more stringent regulations will be enacted and enforced. The temperance sentiment is developing rapidly, and the industries are contributing freely to this development.

The Saturday Evening Post, in a late issue, contained a very interesting article on what the railroads of the country are doing for their army of seven hundred thousand employees, along the line of prohibition.

An order known as Order "G" was sent out by all the roads, a time ago, which prohibited the use of intoxicants, white on duty, and which also provided that entering a saloon at any time might be considered sufficient cause for discharge.

This last clause was regarded by many of the men as a hardship as they claimed that it was an attack on personal liberty, and so this part of the order has not been rigidly enforced.

A careful study of the situation disclosed the fact that when the men were at home that they found but little trouble in keeping out of temptation, but when they were at the other end of the run, the saloon seemed to offer many attractions, so the companies commenced to establish club houses at division points which offered every attraction except drink.

Results have been most satisfactory and now these clubhouses are being generally adopted, and the welfare of the men is carefully guarded by a new official known as a social superintendent. In one town in California where twenty-two saloons flourished two years ago, the number has been reduced to seven. The new railway club house competition was too much for them.

This new policy adopted by the railroads is for self-protection, and is a matter of business. The management discovered that many accidents were caused by carelessness due to drink, and there was too much at stake in life and property to trifle with.

What is true of the railroads is true to greater or less extent of many industries, and with the present stringent liability laws, the manufacturing world finds it necessary to weed out the men who drink, for the man in drunken stupor, who meets with accident, receives the same consideration at the hands of the law, as the man who is injured when sober.

The men who pay the bills, have a right to act as self-appointed guardians, and because of this class of censorship the cause of temperance is strongly reinforced. The new generation is not a generation of tipplers, because the drink habit is an acquired habit, and the appetite, with rare exception, is the result of cultivated taste.

The boy does not take to drink naturally, and but for the social environment which the saloon develops and cultivates, the boy would never take his second drink. This fact the social superintendent discovered when studying the condition of his railroad boys, and so the competitive club house came into existence.

The religious world some day will be wise enough and broad enough to adopt similar methods, and establish half way houses between the saloon and the Y. M. C. A., where under intelligent supervision the boys may enjoy the free and attractive life of the saloon, with the booze cut out.

This may seem like a low standard for a reform movement, but it is intensely practical, and it captures the boy along the lines of least resistance, without his knowing it, and that is the most effective kind of a capture.

It is worth something to vote the saloon out of a community, but it is worth more to drive them out by wholesome temperance competition.
There is plenty of room in every town and city for this kind of work. It may be less attractive to the radical prohibitionist than the aggressive fight, but it is a back-fire which means permanent protection.

The late campaign in Janesville brought out some interesting facts concerning conditions in dry territory, and the most skeptical will be forced to admit that Rockford, dry, is better from every standpoint. Janesville will lose nothing in joining the dry columns, when public sentiment is strong enough to demand the change and enforce the law. The time was not ripe this year, as results clearly showed.

In the meantime the hands of the commission should be strengthened by the most hearty moral support. The writing on the wall is so clear and pronounced that saloon men everywhere understand it. In Madison a meeting has been held to decide on voluntary regulations, and this policy will be generally adopted.

There are other issues of importance, among them the purchase of the water works, soon to be considered. It is to be hoped that public sentiment has changed, on this issue, for taxes are already climbing and city-owned water is a luxury which we can ill-afford.

A cleaner and better Janesville is possible, and the disposition to work together along practical lines, was never more pronounced.

On The Spur of The Moment

The Modern Girl.
I do not sing, I do not play.
As maidens did long, long ago,
We're living in a modern day.
Victrolas do all that, you know.

I do not bake, I don't scrub,
I do not help around the flat;
The silverware I do not rub.
The hired girl attends to that.

I do not walk for exercise,
And haven't since I was sixteen.
For I fare forth in style. I'm wise, ride in mother's limousine.

I don't sew buttons on or mend;
My clothes, my gloves or hat;
I wrap a bundle up to send.
The laundries attend to that.

The only thing I do is dance,
No other duties bore me.
Some day some new machine, perchance,
Will do my tangoing for me.

This Seems to Be the Limit.
What seems to be the limit in highway robbery has occurred in Chicago. Men have been robbed of their wallets and of their watches and chains and some have had their wives stolen. But the latest case is one which passes all bounds of deceit.

A Chicago man was on his way home, the other night when he was held up and robbed of a porter house steak, a pound of butter and a dozen eggs.

The thieves made what appears to have been a successful getaway and left no clue. This is believed to be the richest haul that has been made in Chicago in twenty years.

ISSUE PROCLAMATION FOR CLEAN-UP DAYS

MAYOR FATHERS GIVES PROCLAMATION FOR A TWO DAYS' CLEANING UP.

MAY FIRST AND SECOND

Arbor Day and Fire Prevention Day Will Stimulate Work on May 1st.—Entire City to Work.

PROCLAMATION.

To the Citizens of Janesville, Greeting:

IN ACCORDANCE with custom I hereby designate and proclaim May 1st and 2d as "Fire Prevention and Clean-up Days." I would call attention and urge upon the whole population—men, women and children—the necessity of "gathering up" and disposing of all of the winter's ashes, manure, tin cans and other rubbish, also all inflammable and combustible materials wherever found on their premises, whether it be in yards, alleys, cellar entries, areas, under porches, in basements, storerooms, closets, attics, and in and around sheds and barns, etc.

An enthusiastic and cheerful compliance with the above will greatly enhance not only the beauty of our city, but also that of your neighbors, and thus contribute to the general welfare and health of our city.

JAS. A. FATHERS, Mayor.

May first and second will be the date for the spring clean-up day in Janesville, for today Mayor James A. Fathers issued his proclamation designating these above dates, when Janesville will concentrate efforts in making the entire city one of beauty and sanitation.

Working in co-operation, the city officials, Dr. S. P. Buckmaster, the Junior Civic League, the Fire Prevention campaign, ministers and priests, the Sunday school children, and almost the entire city, have joined the ranks in a centered attack these days.

The dirt must go, for the members of every Sunday school in the city will distribute tickets selling for twenty-five cents, which will entitle the purchaser to have a pile of dirt collected in the back yards to be carried away, leaving nothing but healthfulness and beauty behind.

Where ash piles held away, flower gardens will rule and the pet will be living and breeding in Janesville, a hard problem; if he escapes the ambitious youngsters who are wielding the swatter to earn the pocket money offered by the Junior Civic League.

Dr. Buckmaster will have charge of the teams on the west side of the river and Frank E. Lane, secretary of the Commercial club, on the east side, and both will supervise the work and arrange a system that every purchaser of a ticket will receive benefit from it. As May first is Arbor day, the established custom of the city, Governor McGovern has sent out official notice that May first is proclaimed "Fire Prevention day" and the state fire marshal emphasizes that the cleaning of backyards, alleys, cellars and places where fire is liable to start will be the greatest aid in fire prevention.

Two days have been set by Mayor Fathers as it was deemed necessary to set aside this time instead of only one day, because this year the children have become more interested in the work and will be able to accomplish greater results. Leaders in the movement point to the fact that if the youngsters are made a factor in this clean-up, it will be a success that will grow up with the idea of making and keeping the city clean. On Sunday all ministers and priests will announce the plans from the pulpits and in the Sunday schools the children will be urged to go to church Sunday and will seek to create enthusiasm for the work in this way.

The school children have promised to do their share and the leaders in the movement have planned a system whereby every teacher in the city will be enlisted in the ranks in the clean-up, and certificates of commendation will be given the children which will be given them when signed and countersigned by their parents that they aided in cleaning up the house or yard. Credit will be given to the child that is a detriment to the usefulness and beauty of the home.

The above will come in for their share of the treatment for the commercial club, which will be the city's share of the clean-up. The business district will be in the best condition and here the property owners will find use for the clean-up tickets or they will find the health of the city improved.

The work will be interesting and the taxes will be less, but the city will be a better place to live in. It is hoped that the work will be a success and that the city will be a better place to live in.

THIRTY COUPLES ENJOYED PRETTY DANCE LAST NIGHT.

The continuous pleasant temperature last evening was not favorable to the thirty couples who gathered at the East Side Hotel to enjoy the first social dancing party for the spring season in several months. The latest popular music was furnished by the Eurydice orchestra composed of four pieces. Dancing was the order of the evening and the couples all enjoyed an excellent time. The dance was given by Walter Green and Allen Dearborn.

ROCK COUNTY HAS LONG BEEN FREE FROM DEBT.

Rock county has long been free from debt, the last bonded indebtedness, which was incurred in the purchase of the county farm and the erection of the asylum and almshouse, having been paid over five years ago.

Several other counties of the state, among them Winnebago county, have succeeded in clearing away their bonded debts and have taken occasion to advertise as something worthy of considerable boasting. Rock county has been free from debt so long that these boasts of neighboring counties seem ridiculous.

ROBERT BRENNAN IS ONLY "FLY SWATTER" TO TURN IN PESTS

YOUTHSAID THAT SCARCITY OF PESTS KEPT THEM FROM DEMANDING THE TEN-CENT PIECES.

Robert Brennan, who resides on South Washington street, was the only member of the "Official Fly Swatters" to turn in any flies this morning.

The library or high school, numbering nearly 170, after being told what the trouble was, declared that there were so few flies existing in Janesville at the present time that it was impossible to turn in any.

Some of the children, however, stated that they were on the right road, and had swatted a few, but refused to turn them in until they had a hundred or containing over a hundred.

Women Who Said he Kissed Them Fail to Hurt Pastor's Popularity

Dr. Price and Mrs. Dore, snapped at the trial.

New York, April 17.—Great popularity has come to the Rev. Dr. Jacob E. Price, pastor of the Washington Heights Methodist Episcopal church, since his recent trial before the New York conference, at which a number of women charged that he had made passionate love to them while engaged in pastoral calls. The conference held that Dr. Price had been indiscreet, but that his conduct had not been such as to warrant removing him from his church.

The increased confidence in Dr. Price was shown on Easter Sunday, when seventy-five persons received the right hand of fellowship in his church and five babies were baptized. Not for several years had so large a number been admitted at one time to the church's membership.

IMPORTANT TOPICS WILL BE DISCUSSED

Program is Outlined for Coming Conference of Governors at Madison.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison Wis., April 18.—Five important topics of discussion will be taken up by the Governors' conference that meets here June 9, according to the preliminary program announced by Secretary J. C. Riley today. These topics will be:

"Report of the committee on Cooperation."—Governor Emmett O'Neal of Alabama.

"State Control of Natural Resources."—Governor William Spry of Utah.

"Uniformity of Laws fixing the conditions to be met by foreign corporations before doing business in a State."

"Administrative Problems—Extradition—Submission of the Governors' Recommendations in bill form."

"Uniformity of Safety and Sanitation Laws for Places of Employment, including Administrative Machinery."

Each of these topics will be discussed by at least five governors, whose names will not be announced until later, although many are already preparing data to submit. The meeting will be opened Tuesday morning in the assembly chamber of the new $5,000,000 state capitol of Wisconsin, by an address of welcome delivered by Governor Francis E. McGovern of Wisconsin.

HOW LIFE INSURANCE RATES ARE FIGURED

Slender Women Are Better Risk Than Stout Women Shows Insurance Companies' Report.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] San Francisco April 18.—According to the records of the big life insurance companies of the country, slender women are better risks than stout women and single women live longer than their married sisters. "A woman who is 30 pounds underweight," said George H. Beaudry of a coast life insurance company, "is 18 per cent better risk than a woman who is 30 pounds overweight. Mortality among women who are 30 pounds underweight is only 94 per cent, whereas among women overweight the mortality is 112 per cent."

"The spinster's chances for long life are 50 per cent better than those of her married sisters. Out of 100,000 single women insuring the mortality rate was only 81 per cent, while among the women insuring with their husbands as beneficiaries the percentage was 126 per cent. The married woman has not even chances with a single woman, at least in the first few years of married life. The percentages among the men increase with age. In the first two years of insurance, a woman has a high mortality rate, whether she be married or single, and this fact the companies attribute to a premonition which women are people of her possessions. The insurance people call this instinct and they say women feel possibilities of death so keenly that often the companies lose during the first two years of policy holding."

"Two per cent of all the policies the companies grant to suicide and the figures relating to women's suicide throws an interesting light on the facts. Death from self-inflicted causes among spinsters total only six-tenths of one per cent, while among married women the percentage is less than one-tenth higher. The companies make a distinction, however, among the happily married women. Between the whose insurance is drawn in favor of their husbands, and the single women there is almost no difference."

CONGRESSMAN MARRIES HEIR WITH A MILLION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., April 18.—More than three thousand representatives of the local and resident society this afternoon attended the wedding of Representative Henry D. Flood, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee to Miss Anna V. Porter, a member of a noted Virginia family. Miss Porter is worth a million in her own right. The wedding at All Souls' church was one of the most brilliant social events since the White House wedding, and because of the prominence of her parties attracted the leading diplomats, cabinet officials, congressmen and senators.

Miss Genevieve Clark, the speaker's daughter, was one of the bridesmaids. The others were Baroness Marie Bunsen, Misses Hanna Taylor, Cornelia Clagett, Douglas Fuller of Winchester, Va., and Lucy Martin, daughter of Senator Martin of Virginia.

The bride is of striking brunette beauty—one of the five sisters known as among the prettiest girls of Washington's social elite.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and me was taking a walk before supper yesterday and Mr. Wilkins came along. We were walking and Mr. Wilkins was saying, "Afternoon yureself," sed pop, the weather man announces clear and warmer, so I guess we better look for sun."

Well, I don't mind sun, sed Mr. Wilkins. "Possibly not, sed pop, but they say sun is very bad for babies, they say very few babies can stand being left out in the sun over nite."

You will have yure little book, wont you, Pops, sed Mr. Wilkins, and by the way, are you going to do anything the 18th of next month?"

Nothing except the usual unimaginative routine of life, I expect, wy, sed pop.

Because Winfield is going to give a party on that date, and I'd like you to come around, sed Mr. Wilkins.

That sounds pretty good, sed pop, who did you say was going to give it, Winfield, sed Mr. Wilkins.

Who, sed pop.

Winfield, the baby here, sed Mr. Wilkins. You must be joking, aren't you, sed pop.

Sefteny I'm not joking, sed Mr. Wilkins. Winfield will be six months old the 18th of next month, and he's going to give a little celebration, I told you can come.

Yes sed pop, O by the way, I forgot the 18th of next month, heh, wy, that's my party, my wife's unkel or somebody is kuming so I guess I can't join you.

Not the 18th, the 16th, sed Mr. Wilkins. O, the 16th, that's awl rite then, sed pop, but say, if its a baby party how is it you don't just invite awl babies.

O, babies cant appriseate each other, sed Mr. Wilkins, we intend to put little Winfield throo awl his stunts, and a lot of other babies cant appriseate that, you no.

Good nite, I mean, that's so, that's so, sed pop, well, I guess we better be on our way, kum awn, Benny.

So lawing, sed Mr. Wilkins, I'll expect you then.

Awl rite, sed pop. And we started to walk, and awl of a sudden non turned around agen, saying, Hay, George Wolfe, Sr.

GARDEN MAKING TIME HERE IN FULL SWING

WARM SPRING WEATHER HASTENS WORK ON CITY GARDEN PLOTS.

SOME VALUABLE HINTS

Bulletin of Department of Agriculture Gives Suggestions on Preparation of Soil.

Has the garden making fever struck you yet? If it hasn't you are probably impudent, because the activity has already started and garden friends are exchanging ideas and telling how much they have accomplished. Time hints and suggestions are always welcomed, and the following bulletin set out by the department of agriculture will be of interest:

It is now devoted to the various kinds of garden crops, how to supply a family with one hundred dollars' worth of vegetables during the year. A bountiful supply of really fresh vegetables close at hand, however, is of more importance even than the money value, says Farmers' Bulletin 255 on the Home Vegetable Garden. The home vegetable garden, therefore, is worthy of special attention and should include a greater number and variety of crops.

Where there is considerable choice in the location of the garden plot, it is often possible to select land that will require very little special preparation. On the other hand, it may be necessary to take an undesirable soil and make it into a suitable condition, and it is generally surprising to note the change that can be wrought in a single season.

Need Good Drainage. Good drainage of the garden area is of primary importance. It is desirable that the land have sufficient fall to drain off surplus water during heavy rains, but the fall should not be so great that the soil would be washed. The surface of the garden should not contain depressions in which water will accumulate and stand. Waste water from surrounding land should not be allowed to drain upon the garden. A good fence around the garden spot is indispensable and it should be a safeguard against all animals, especially poultry. A light board fence will accomplish this result and also serve as a windbreak.

The kind of fertilizer employed has a marked influence on the character and quality of the vegetables produced. Fertilizer of organic composition, such as barnyard manure, should have passed through the fermenting stage before being used. Well-rotted barnyard manure has no equal as a fertilizer for garden crops. Chicken, pig, cow and sheep manure rank high as fertilizers, and manure from fowls is especially adapted for dropping in the hills or rows of plants.

Autumn is the time for plowing hard or stiff clay soils, especially if in a part of the country where freezing takes place, as the action of the frost during the winter will break the soil into fine particles and render it suitable for planting. Sandy loams and soils that contain a large amount of humus may be plowed in the spring, but the work should be done early in order that the soil may settle before planting.

Preparing the Ground. Sandy soils will bear plowing much earlier than heavy clay soils. The usual test is to squeeze together a handful, and if the soil adheres in a ball it is too wet for working. In the garden greater depth of plowing should be practiced than for ordinary farm crops, as the roots of many vegetables will be found advantageous in most cases, as the drainage and general movement of the soil moisture will be improved thereby.

Hand spading should be resorted to only in very small gardens or where it is desirable to prepare a small area very thoroughly. After plowing, the next important step is to smooth and pulverize the soil. If the soil be well prepared before planting, the work of caring for the crops will be materially lessened. It is not sufficient that the land be smooth and fine on top, but the pulverizing process should extend as deep as the plowing.

In planning the location of the various crops in the garden, due consideration should be given to the matter of succession in order that the land may be occupied at all times. As a rule it would not be best to have a second planting of the same crop follow the first, but some such arrangement as early peas followed by celery, or early cabbage or potatoes followed by late beans or corn, and similar combinations, and more satisfactory.

Sowing the Seeds. Garden seeds should always be sown in straight rows regardless of where the planting is made. By planting in this manner the seedlings will be more uniform in size and shape, and thinning and cultivating will be more easily accomplished. In the control of insects and diseases that infect garden crops it is often possible to accomplish a great amount of good by careful sanitary arrangement. Some of the vegetables among the garden varieties that are comparatively easy cultivated are: artichoke, asparagus, beans, beets, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, carrot, cauliflower, cucumber, sweet corn, cress, eggplant, endive, potatoes, lettuce, okra, spinach, parsnip, peas, pepper, squash and onions.

For growing certain crops, it has often been found advisable to prepare the ground in a special manner. Such crops as beets, radishes, and onions are sometimes grown on beds six to ten feet in width and raised six to eight inches, with narrow walks between. From Baltimore southward, cabbage, cauliflower, and similar crops are frequently grown on top or on the sides of ridges. When the plants are set on top of the ridge better drainage for the roots is secured. When set on the south side of the ridge, greater warmth and earlier maturity will be secured, and when planted on the north side, the growth is retarded.

For growing celery and a few similar crops it has been found advisable to place the plants in furrows or slight trenches in order that the soil removed may be available for working in around the plants as they mature.

Soil for Seed Beds. In the broadest sense the entire garden is a seed bed, as the seeds of many of the crops are planted where they are to grow. As the term "seed bed" is used here it refers to some specially prepared place for starting plants, from which they may be transplanted to their permanent positions in the garden. The location of an outdoor seed bed should be that it may be conveniently reached for watering, and it should be naturally protected from drying winds.

Good soil for a seed bed consists of one part of well-rotted manure, two parts of good garden loam or rotted sods, and one part of sharp, fine sand. The manure should be thoroughly rotted, but it should not have been exposed to the weather and the strength leached out of it. The addition of leaf mold or peat will tend to make the soil better adapted for seed-bed purposes. Mix all the ingredients together in a heap, stirring well with a fork or after which the soil should be sifted and placed in boxes or in the bed ready for sowing the seed. Weed seeds and the spores of fungous diseases that are present in the soil for a seed bed may be killed by placing the soil in pans and baking it for an hour in a hot oven.

Importance of Moisture. The seed bed should never be allowed to become dry, but great care should be taken that too much water is not applied. Plants require the action of air upon their roots and an excess of water in the soil will exclude the air. Too frequent and heavy waterings will cause the damping-off of the seedlings.

A few hours before removing plants from the seed bed or plant bed they should be well watered and the water allowed to soak into the soil. This will insure a portion of the soil adhering to the roots and prevent the plants from being properly thinned or transplanted. It is often possible to cut a knife or trowel between them, thus cutting the soil into cubes that are transferred with them to the garden. Where the soil does not adhere to the roots of the plants it is well to puddle them. In the process of puddling, a hole is dug in the earth near the plant bed, or a large pail or pan may be used for the purpose, and a thin slime consisting of clay, cow manure and water is prepared. The plants are taken in small bunches and their roots thoroughly coated with this mixture by dipping them in it. Puddling insures a coating of moist earth over the entire root system of the plant, prevents the air from reaching the rootlets while on the way to the garden, and aids in securing direct contact between the roots and the soil.

Benefits of Shading. In parts of the country where the sunshine is extremely hot during a part of the summer, some plants, especially those that are grown for salad purposes, are benefited by shading. Shading is often used in the care of small plants when they are first transplanted.

When boards are available they can be used for protecting plants that have been set in rows. In the garden by placing them on the south side of the row at an angle that will cast a shadow over the plants, and holding them in place by short stakes driven in the ground. Laths, wooden slats, cotton cloth or shaded sash are frequently used to protect plant beds from the summer heat.

DANE COUNTY CALEDONIANS HAVE FLOURISHING SOCIETY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., April 18.—The membership of the Dane County Caledonian Society will be much increased under an amendment to the by-laws which permits Scotchmen from counties adjoining to Dane to join. This is the only large society of the Scotch in this part of the state, and in opening its rolls to all Scotch in Dane, Rock, Iowa, Columbia and Jefferson counties it permits them to share in the periodical entertainments, banquets and picnics held in Madison. Arrangements are now being made for the annual picnic at Monona Park on Wednesday, June 20, when several hundred are expected to attend. Dr. A. S. Alexander is president of the society and H. M. Howitt, of the secretary of state's office, to whom applications for membership are made, is secretary.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

New Management of Buob's Brewery to Discontinue Use of Old Name. New Concern To Be Known As

The Badger State Brewing Co.

THE name Buob, so long associated with the history of Janesville, will be no longer actively identified with its industries. There are many people who no doubt will feel with keen regret the passing of this name from the business lists of the city.

But starting new as we are we feel that we want to start alone and unaided. We want to establish our business and our products on the sole basis of pure, unadulterated merit. This new concern has recently been incorporated under the laws of Wisconsin and will be known as The Badger State Brewing Company of which Peter Meer will be president, Albert Blume vice-president, and H. L. Steiber secretary and general manager. All of these men have been connected with the brewing industry for many years and understand thoroughly all the technical points of master brewing.

Badger Brew Beer for the Home

"It's Charm Is In Its Flavor."

Drink it every day—it will do you a world of good. Take it as a tonic.

The rugged Germans, the greatest beer drinkers on earth, owe their sturdiness to the drinking of pure, wholesome beer.

Milwaukee Correspondent Comments on Tendency of Americans to Follow Propaganda and Fads.

By Ellis B. Usher.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 18.—The Wall Street Journal in a recent issue suggests that dancing should be encouraged. Its idea is that with railroads being unprofitable, manufacturing in hesitation, "finance is turning to retail business, gum-chewing concerns, moving pictures, vaudeville and dancing. A friend of mine put it aptly when he said to me recently, "Nobody stays at home nowadays, nobody entertains at home; everybody lives in a dance hall or a taxi-cab." Both of these statements are altogether too near the truth to accounts of the measure of exaggeration. When the men are not bowing like a pack of fans on a ball field, over politics, the women are marshaled to make sure there shall be a din of some kind in constant progress. The "new movement" of the year must be kept working somehow. This week Milwaukee has started into the cubist field of art, and I understand that in music discords are soon to have the front seats, and harmony will be cried down as wholly behind the times. On Thursday evening an exhibition was opened at the galleries of the Milwaukee Art society, which contains some of the most delightful curiosities in crazy quilt art that have ever entered the borders of Wisconsin. The real enthusiasts tell you with solemn visage and bated breath that this is a "new movement." That it is revolutionizing all the old theories of art. That it is wholly indifferent to actual results and the cubist who paints most realistically what he sees, he thinks, not what he sees. I can readily believe that to be so, and I should go farther and say that his "think tank" was overheated and expanding too rapidly into steam. There is no way to account for such art any more than there is a rational way for accounting for the craze in automobiles or the tango. The shape of people's heads must be changing, or the world must be passing through a zone of psychodrama. Why should he be necessary to paint pictures of things that are in such a manner as to place them beyond the comprehension of any sane individual, and outside the pale of an especially and carefully prepared key. I remember in my boyhood, shortly after I had seen Turner's "Slave Ship," of reading a story of a small boy who, having accidentally mutilated himself upon a painter's palette, was snatched from it by his mother, who was so enraptured by the "perfect Turner" which she saw upon the seat of his trousers that she preserved and framed it. This is a little, saving hard common sense in reserve anywhere. It is getting high time that it should be carefully husbanded.

But seriously, the Wall Street Journal's jest is not without deep significance. I commented some time ago upon the fact that Standard Oil money and the money of other large interests is seeking channels for investment outside the range of public service. It is understood, for example, that the investment of Cleveland and New York money in the new Plankinton house in this city is of this character. The promotion of such enterprises also assists to furnish market for the steel trust output of cement as well as steel. Restaurants, bakeries and institutions of this sort, that have to do with the daily feeding of the public, are becoming more and more capital. Wisconsin people have perhaps noticed the recent statements in the state press that it has been discovered that the butter and cheese business of Wisconsin is a monopoly. This means that it has been discovered that the farmers, in whose interest we have been spending so much money through agricultural propaganda, are not the monopolists, so they are making plans for co-operative monopolies. Such suggestions might be multiplied to show that the practical results of much of our latter day legislation are futile, except in inspiring competition in business to test the considered of the most humble business character.

Few men who know William Essmann can contemplate his downfall without emotion. A financial breach of trust is such an unnecessary thing, so shortsighted, so full of peril, as this case illustrates, that it is hard to understand the intelligent man who commits such wrongs upon society. His intelligence seems to be valueless. If it is, it is not a great loss. Back home, I am sorry for "Billy" Essmann, as everybody has familiarly known him, but his downfall has a significance deeper than his merely personal aspect. He has been for some years one of the men at the front of the progressive movement in Wisconsin. He has been intimately associated with all the chiefs and nearly all of the campaigns. He held one of the most important posts in the gift of the state government, a position that has risen in its importance from an expenditure aggregating $126,431 for 1899-1900 to $308,529 for 1911-12. He was in charge of the capitol. He employed men and women. He dealt out rationing and supplies. The position is one of great political influence. The political element with which Mr. Essmann has been prominent has been unsparing and uncharitable in its criticism of others, and has been repeatedly said that no dishonesty was even suspected, and this has been conceded by some of the sharpest critics of state extravagance. Yet a progressive candidate for attorney general has committed suicide, and a superintendent of public property, who has long been in the most intimate confidence of Wisconsin's recent leaders in politics, has pleaded guilty and gone to Wauhan for eighteen months. It is something more than a personal fall. The men who have thanked God that they were not as other men, throughout their recent command in politics in Wisconsin, are too close to "Billy Essmann" to be free from responsibility for that sort of misgovernment. It is not an individual matter.

Interesting Experiment.
It will interest many Wisconsin people to learn that the recent experiments at the University of Chicago to test the rigidity of the earth were planned by and executed under the direction of Prof. T. C. Chamberlain, formerly president of the University of Wisconsin. Microscopes measured changes in levels at the ends of a column of water 500 feet long, which one-half filled a pipe six inches in diameter, placed six feet under ground to assure constancy of temperature. It was found that the attraction of sun and moon caused tides in the pipe. The maximum changes in level were recorded. The result of these experiments is believed to prove that the old theory that the interior of the earth is molten, is erroneous. Yet, in spite of this high rigidity, the ball upon which we live exhibits an elasticity to which ocean tides are due, under the action of the sun and moon. The March issues of the Astrophysical Journal and the Journal of Geology, published by the University of Chicago press, gives fuller accounts of the character and results of these experiments.

Captain John D. Ferry of the U. S. revenue cutter Tuscarora has received notice from the chief of the revenue cutter service at Washington that competitive examinations will be held, beginning June 1, for entrance to the School of Instruction at Fort Trumbull, New London, Conn. This school gives a three years' course, which includes an annual cruise on the cutter Itasca. A successful completion of the course at the academy entitles cadets to commissions as third lieutenants or as third lieutenants of engineers in accordance with the branch which they enter. The commissions are issued by the president, with the approval of the senate, and the tenure is for life. The requirements for entrance demand thorough grounding in spelling, geography, universal and American history, grammar, algebra and elementary trigonometry, and the applicant must be perfect physically. The competition is an open one, and further information may be had by application to the chief of the revenue cutter service, Washington, D. C.

The Launching of the "Alice Stafford."
The launching of the new steel tug "Alice Stafford" took place at the works of the Manitowoc Dry Dock company in Manitowoc on Wednesday morning, and was participated in by a distinguished company of Erie railroad officials. General Manager H. O. Dunkel and a number of other representatives of the Erie railroad, lake line from Chicago, with their families, arrived Tuesday evening in their private car. H. D. Phett, general agent of the Erie for Wisconsin, and W. J. Fitzgerald, his assistant, went up from Milwaukee Wednesday morning. The Dry Dock company and the local agent of the Erie, Senator Randolph and other prominent citizens of Manitowoc joined in the excitement. The company served a luncheon at their conclusion. Miss Helen Dunkel broke a bottle of wine upon the prow of the boat and christened her as she slid into the water. As has already been said in these letters, the "Alice Stafford" is named for the president's wife, Mrs. Frederick D. Underwood, and will go into commission in Chicago, where the "Fredrick D. Underwood" has been handling Erie freight for some months, between Erie terminals and the Chicago river.

Reports from New York indicate that the Erie railroad delivered nearly 1,300,000 bushels of wheat in that city during the month of March. This was the largest handling of any road entering the metropolis. The New Standard Dictionary, which is now being delivered throughout the country, is an admirable revision and bringing up to date of a dictionary that has made itself a permanent place during the last twenty years. The dictionary is handsomely printed, well illustrated, and substantially bound. Funk & Wagnall, the publishers, have kept up in every respect to the high grade that has made their dictionary deservedly a favorite.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, April 18, 1874.—Half a dozen young urchins were brought before Judge Smith yesterday afternoon and this morning on a charge of stealing sugar and other articles from the freight cars. After a long examination they were dismissed on paying the costs.

An adjourned meeting of the council was held last evening, at which Mayor Hon. James Sutherland presided and all the aldermen were present except McLean. After many matters of importance were adjusted the council was declared adjourned sine die by the mayor.

A small fire in a house above the railroad bridge, first ward, brought out the department at 5 o'clock this morning. The fire was extinguished before the department arrived.

Cal Wagner's minstrel band gave our citizens some beautiful music this afternoon.

No quorum was present at the scheduled meeting of the school board last evening.

The city council accepted the resignation of J. C. Hennings as member of No. 2 fire company and Charles Carman was elected to fill his place. Also the resignations of John Ehringer and George Colling of No. 1 were accepted and Fred Holden and George Ehringer elected to fill the vacancies.

The ladies of the First M. E. church met last evening pursuant to notice and decided to raise some funds for the purpose of procuring clothing for and a long table arranged in the center. Upon the table was a large bouquet of red and white carnations and the color scheme was neatly carried out in the setting. The occasion was a decided success, the general good fellowship prevailing, making up for what may have seemed lacking in numbers.

On next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, Rev. W. A. Leighton, who is scoutmaster of forty boys at Milton, will talk to the boys' scouts of this place, who now number about twenty-five under the leadership of Stanley Woodruff. He will wear the scout uniform and tell how he and his boys spent four weeks at the lake last summer. The meeting will be held in Scherer's hall so that all can attend and the admission is free. Every father and every mother ought to be there and learn about this splendid movement. You will find the talk entertaining as well. Everybody go. Let the hall be packed—Palmyra Enterprise.

Study Your Figure

DOES it show smooth, naturally curving lines from knee to shoulder; does your gown hang just the way it should; have you the poise and graceful stance that marks the well-corseted woman? Yes, all this, as well as your health and comfort, depends upon your corset.

Redfern Corsets

will prove this to you. Let us fit you to one of the new models for this season and you will certainly be surprised at the attractive result.

Consider for a moment the comparatively boneless models that are now the rage. Take one of these boneless Redferns in your hands and see how light and flexible it is—yet it will mold your figure with perfect support in ideal, fashionable lines. One feature is the supple clasp, giving the slightly curved front that fashion now demands.

The great secret, however, of Redfern superiority—for Redferns are superior, although inexpensive—lies in the designing. This you appreciate when you are fitted, and our expert attendants will be pleased to serve you in our Corset Department.

CLEANABLE
One Piece--Porcelain Lined Refrigerators

Each compartment is ALL ONE PIECE.

The corners are rounded to facilitate cleaning.

The compartments are connected by an AIRTIGHT JOINT COVER, also rounded and easy to clean.

The Shelf Supports are fastened from the outside, thus closing up the holes so that there is no place for germs to hide.

When the linings are placed in the Refrigerator, they are spaced away from the inside box, making one more dead air space, thus increasing the insulation and giving a LOWER TEMPERATURE with LESS CONSUMPTION OF ICE THAN ever before.

These refrigerators are superior to those lined with tile, opal glass, marbelite or so-called "solid porcelain" for the following reasons:

Tile is sure to craze, opal glass is easily broken and the so-called "solid porcelain" and marbelite are porous.

Come in and see these refrigerators. None better and the price is moderate.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A GREAT MISTAKE.

ONE OF THE greatest mistakes of my life is not to have kept a scrap book.

What we read means a great deal to most of us. We find our own dumb thoughts expressed as we should have liked to express them had we the gift of speech. We find new vistas of thought, we find some philosophy that influence our lives, and bits of poetry that feed our souls.

Now some of these things we find in books, either books that we are able to own, or books that we have borrowed from a friend or a library and cannot afford to possess.

But I do not think I should exaggerate if I said that at least half of the printed words that strike fire from our hearts we find in the magazines and newspapers. And these we may have to keep without any expense if we will only take the trouble to wield a pair of shears for half a minute.

How strange that so few people will take that much pains.

Something about South America came up in a conversation the other day and the other party said, "There, that reminds me of a story about South America that I saw awhile ago in a magazine. Did you read it? I tell you it was great. It illustrates just what we were saying. I'll try and find it for you."

But of course he forgot to hunt it up and when he remembered the magazine was not to be found.

This echo of a bit of poetry I read in a magazine which has been haunting me for months, but I can't remember which publication it was in, and as our old magazines were given away during my absence on a journey, I have no way to locate it. When I saw it, I meant to save it.

It was waiting for it and so I didn't. And now I'd gladly pay the price of a whole volume of poems for that one. Incidentally perhaps some of my reader friends can tell me where to find it. The last and only line I remember was, "If you were kneeling at my feet, I'd neither stay nor go."

A friend of mine has kept scrap books since her childhood. She has perhaps twenty or thirty of them. They are not so large as the old fashioned ones, but she can stand up in her book case like ordinary books. Some of them are filled with stories that particularly appealed to her. Others contain poems and scraps of philosophy. One particularly interesting book is filled with likenesses.

We frequently see pictures in newspapers and magazines that remind us of some friend, but when we come to show the likeness to that friend we find that the woman has kept all these likenesses and they make a most interesting volume in her set of scrap books.

I notice that she consults the two bookcases that hold her scrap books more often than she does the other ten which are filled with ordinary books.

Several times I have started scrap books and grown weary in well doing. But it is never too late to mend. Tomorrow I'm going to start a new one. Will you join me?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a divorced woman. He says he loves me better than any woman ever met. I never loved anyone so dearly.

(4) Would you wait and marry someone else who did not work around the mines?

(5) My people want me to marry for a home and money. DIVORCED.

(1) If he loves you dearly and you cannot give him any love in return, would you be doing what is right to the man if you married him? It seems to me that he would be doing all the giving and you all the taking, especially if you love another man.

(2) One cannot always trust the opinion of one's friends about one's talents. If you think you have a good voice and real talent for the stage, go to a big city, get some of the stage managers to listen to you and then take their advice. If you go on the stage you must remember that you cannot give your child the right kind of voice and real talent for the stage, she will not get the right sort of education. If you send her away to school you will grow apart.

(3) I never counsel a woman to marry a man who drinks. I have seen too much misery in homes because the man drinks. Can't you go away for a while and try to forget this man? Maybe after you have separated yourself for a while from all the men you know now you will find that you think very differently about them. Possibly you will discover that you can get along without any of them better than without the man who has no bad habits.

(4) My answer to this is No. 3.

(5) Do what your own best judgment and common sense tell you to do. If your people are supporting you and your child, the burden is perhaps too heavy for them. Can't you find something to do to support yourself and child?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am sixteen years of age.

(1) I am in love with a girl who is very nice. She has moved away. Should I go and see her?

(2) Once I quit this girl and went with another girl and went back before hundreds of people and they have always applauded.

(3) Should I marry the man I love? He is a poor boy, but a good worker; makes about $65 a month, but drinks my old home. Did I treat my girl right?

(4) She gave me a ring before she moved away. What should I get to replace the gift? How often should I go and see her?

(5) What will clear the complexion and remove pimples from face? LONESOME BOY.

(1) Why not?

(2) You were not exactly considerate to either girl, but you are too young to know very well what you want.

(3) Don't give her a ring, because you are not engaged to her, and a nice girl won't accept a ring from a boy unless she is engaged to marry him. Give her some little thing that she can keep to remember you—a double photograph frame or a pretty hand mirror or a dainty fan, would be all right.

(4) It depends upon how much time it takes to get to her. I should think once a week would be enough if she does not live too far away.

(5) Keep yourself clean inside and out. Plenty of soap and water every day and outdoor exercise ought to clear your skin. Bathe every day. Do not eat rich, greasy foods and chew your food well. Keep the bowels open—a dose of Epsom salts will do you good occasionally.

HERE'S PRESIDENT READING MESSAGE

This picture is a close-up of President Wilson reading his anti-trust message to congress, in which he made known his desire for legislation which would restore competition in every branch of industry and trade. This is the fifth time he has addressed congress.

THE world generally gives its due admiration not to the man who does what nobody else can do, but to the man who does best what others do well.

A FEW GOOD SAUCES.

Many times a plain dish, if accompanied by a sauce, assumes a dignity of such importance that it makes it a family creation.

Egg Sauce.—Make a rich white sauce using two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, a half teaspoonful of salt and a cupful of milk with a dash of paprika or a teaspoonful of onion juice. When the butter is bubbling hot add the flour and mix well, then stir in the milk, and when thick add the salt and onion juice. To this white sauce add two or three finely chopped hard cooked eggs and serve with a bit of lemon juice or a chopped sour pickle added to the sauce. This is a fish sauce, and may be used with either boiled or baked fish.

Curry Sauce.—Melt a tablespoonful of browned flour and a teaspoonful of curry powder. Add a cupful of boiling water and cook until smooth. Season with salt, red pepper and onion juice and serve with mutton.

Horseradish Sauce.—Put into a saucepan a tablespoonful of butter and half a tablespoonful of flour, when the butter is bubbling stir in the flour and cook until smooth, then add a cupful of strained soup stock, a half a cup of milk, six peppercorns, a speck of bay leaf and half a teaspoonful of salt. Cook five minutes, remove the peppercorns and the bay leaf and add three tablespoonfuls of grated horseradish. Cook two more minutes and serve. This is also good with fish, although it is used with many meats.

Celery Sauce.—Take a white sauce of two tablespoonfuls each flour and butter as above, add a pint of warm milk and a dozen stalks of celery minced and cooked tender, in enough water to cover. Add the celery and any of the liquor left, cook a few minutes to be sure that the flour is cooked, season with salt and pepper and serve hot with boiled fowl.

Tartar Sauce.—This is a mayonnaise dressing, to which has been added chopped pickles and a few capers, if so desired. Mayonnaise is made by beating the yolk of an egg until smooth and then adding olive oil, a few drops at a time alternating with lemon juice or vinegar, using four tablespoonfuls of lemon and three-fourths of a cup of oil. Salt and red pepper to taste.

Women Worth While

MRS. HENRY D. FLOOD.

(By Selene Armstrong Harmon.)

MRS. HENRY D. FLOOD, who has just entered official life in Washington as the bride of Representative Flood of Virginia, can hardly be called a "woman."

She is yet but a slip of a girl, a girl whose equipment for a position in public life consists of graceful manners, a cultivated mind and unusual personal magnetism.

Mrs. Flood is a Virginian, and like all Virginians is enthusiastically devoted to the place of her nativity. Her family home at Manassas is one of the show places in that section of the state and is a mansion set in a beautiful park of old trees and shrubbery. It was built some years ago by Mrs. Flood's father.

Educated abroad, Mrs. Flood is a German as easily as her own tongue. Much of her time has been spent in travel, and when visiting last summer at the country home of a friend in England she had the good fortune to arrive just after the exciting events of one of the most daring of the militant outbursts.

Mrs. Fankhurst, who had been a guest at the same house, had just left to go on one of her celebrated raids, and in order to have her safely pass the police her friends arrayed her in American made clothing. In this way she escaped the police and succeeded so well in her expedition that the whole world soon rang with her exploits.

Young Mrs. Flood is not a suffragist and nothing could be further from a suggestion of militancy than her gentle, bright girlishness. She is, however, outspoken in expressing her opinion of the unfairness of the English law toward women and her sympathies are on the side of obtaining justice for her sex.

"I have no desire to vote," she said, laughing, "but I think those who do wish to should have the right. I am deeply interested in politics, though personally I have no desire to enter them."

Since her debut as Miss Anna Portner, Mrs. Flood's life in Washington has not been all dances and teas. On the contrary, she has many serious interests. She feels a deep concern for those whose paths in life have not been so fortunate as her own and she has worked actively in charities in Washington. Also, she has taken a particular interest in social settlement work, entering with enthusiasm into the activities of Neighborhood House, one of the largest settlements in Washington.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Lime powder well sprinkled where cockroaches abound will drive them away. If pancakes or griddle cakes will not brown to a turn, add a spoonful of sugar or half a spoonful of molasses to the batter. The bit of sugar and molasses does not change the taste or proportions of the other ingredients.

To test the purity of coffee, pour cold water on it. If the water assumes a brownish hue, it may be concluded there is chicory with it. When starching holland pinafores, put a little strong tea into the starch. This keeps the garments a good color.

moderate oven until of the consistency of custard. Spread with a meringue made of the egg whites. Serve with cream or foamy sauce.

Pineapple Chips.—After peeling and removing the eyes of the pineapple, cut it into thin strips, lay on a platter and cover with granulated sugar. Keep the pieces separate. Set the platters on shelves in a dry closet and sprinkle them with sugar every day, pouring off the syrup as it gathers. When the chips are dry and crystallized, pack in tin boxes with oiled paper between each layer. The syrup may be used for jellies or a drink with the addition of water.

SAYS PASTOR WAS VERY AFFECTIONATE

Mrs. E. J. Leger.

An important witness against the Rev. Embury Price, pastor of the Washington Heights Methodist Episcopal church, in New York, in Price's trial before fifteen clergymen of the New York conference was Mrs. E. J. Leger. She charged that in May, 1912, Dr. Price embraced and kissed her twice. On a second visit, when he found her wearing a kimono, she says, he was more violent in his attentions.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

"Your yard is so clean, how do you manage it?" said a busy woman to her cousin who lived across the town from her. "I noticed as I came past your side yard that there is not a bit of rubbish to be seen."

"Why, that's easy," said her cousin, "Easy as can be." "Just clean your yard first, then get your daily paper and look through the want ad columns for the phone number of some teamster who is wisely making use of his team, in hauling away ashes and rubbish from the yards of his townspeople."

"I sent Sammy over a mile after school last night to get a man to come and haul our rubbish away. Then he could not come for at least a week."

"Read your want ad columns; your trotting about will be a thing of the past, as far as looking for service is concerned. I know, for I've been through all the worry and fuss you are now experiencing."

Are you a daily reader of the want ads? If not, for your own sake, decide to be.

Royal Princesses Strike Over Old System of Made to Order Marriages for Royal Marriages.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, April 18.—European courts face what is practically a widespread strike on the part of princesses against matrimony made to order. Individual protests against being made a victim of the old system whereby royal children have no voice in the selection of life partners are as old as the system itself, but the stand now taken, particularly by the princesses, is said to appear like a concerted action. It is a blow to the royal matchmakers, who blame both the scarcity of princesses and the growth of feminism for the failure of their pet system. In this connection it is known that many of the royal dowagers are inclined to lay the responsibility for this state of affairs on the fair shoulders of Princess Patricia of Connaught, daughter of the governor general of Canada, who is said during her residence in the new world to have acquired certain odious democratic ideals not at all in harmony with her station.

Princesses Scarce.—The recent birth of a son to the Duchess of Brunswick, the only daughter of Emperor William of Germany, has served to call attention again to the small number of princesses and has even further forced to the excuse of the royal matchmakers that they are unable to find suitable partners of their own rank. This excuse may or may not be entirely valid, but it is undoubtedly true that both the young men and women of the royal circles show a distinct disinclination towards matrimony made to order.

Prince Refuses.—Among the eligible princesses, who seem to be in a hurry to accept the partners selected for them by their royal parents, are the elder daughters of the Emperor Nicholas of Russia, notably the Grand Duchess Tatiana, the beauty of the Russian imperial court, and Princess Elizabeth of Roumania. The latter is really a beautiful girl and any debutante might envy her perfect features, her cloud of lovely hair and her very expressive eyes. Both she and her younger sister, Princess Marie, have inherited the wonderful coloring excellence coupled with the half-day, half-night charm of their native land.

But the strike is not confined entirely to feminine sprigs of royalty. It is even said that the Prince of Wales, the most eligible of royal bachelors, has turned up his nose at a very high-priced but extremely unattractive princess.

Form New Church.—The Church of the New Ideal, which admits no males to membership, has held its first services. The church is located at Wallasey, the newly constituted borough on the Cheshire side of the Mersey. Some two hundred women assembled for the inaugural service, delivered by the Rev. Hatty Baker of Plymouth. Men were rigorously excluded.

A preliminary declaration of reasons for the formation of the church sets forth "the epoch making advance in the self-consciousness of women as a sex" and woman's realization of equality with men in religious as well as other spheres of life. Their exclusion hitherto from any share in conducting church service is referred to as an exclusion by which the general progress of humanity has been delayed.

Suffragette Ideas.—The Rev. Hatty Baker, who wore what is described as a "white choker" and a black gown of conventional clerical type, took as her subject, "God's Glorious Ideal." She declared that churches as founded and conducted by men obscured this ideal, and the present effort was to create a church of the future which would be along the lines of the ideal. Abraham, she

ST. BERNARD MONKS AFFORD SHELTER TO THOUSANDS IN YEAR

Rich Tourists in Switzerland Prone to Take Advantage of Order's Charity.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Gneveva, Switzerland, April 18.—The Saint Bernard monks afford shelter and food to nearly 40,000 persons last year. The average voluntary contribution dropped into the box at the gate was equivalent to two cents a person. The monastery finds itself in financial difficulties and the chapter is considering whether a fixed charge must not be made in the future for the rich travelers who visit the monastery during fine weather. Stay for the night and drop a franc or two into the box in payment for themselves and chauffeur for two days' keep.

The monks have carried on their charity for nine centuries without asking any visitor to pay. They have been able to do so by the income from lands vested in the monastery. But during the last ten years the cost of everything has gone up about 40 percent while rentals have remained stationary.

"We hope to continue," says the Abbot Bourgeois, the head of the chapter, "giving free hospitality as we have done since the twelfth century, although if the burden becomes too heavy for our means we shall be obliged to charge a small sum much against our inclination and our principles."

Celebrates Birthday.—Baron Fernand de Turckheim celebrated his one hundred and third birthday at Montreux on March 21, playing to his relatives and friends two unpublished manuscripts of Chopin, whose intimate friend he was and who gave him the two manuscripts. His wife, who is 92, shares honors with him. They were married fifty-one years ago. Baron de Turckheim is a grandson of Lily Schoenemann, who was the fiancée of Goethe, and his grandfather was General Jean Rapp of Napoleon's days. Baron de Turckheim was a Frenchman of Alsace and after the Prussian conquest he left his province, lived first in Paris and then here. He is an author in five languages.

Editor Sentenced.—Frederick Lutz, the proprietor and editor of a technical newspaper called "Commerce of the Continent Beyond the Seas," published at Zurich, has been sentenced to a year's imprisonment on a charge of defrauding the public by claiming a larger circulation in Europe and America than he had. Lutz's defense was that he knew of no newspaper on the continent which published his real circulation, and that he had followed the usual practice of letting the advertiser find out for himself.

Plan Wheat Supply.—The Swiss government is considering the idea of an arrangement with the grain interests in the central States whereby the Swiss might be supplied with American wheat if the powers which surround the little neutral republic were at war. The foreign office is negotiating first with the French and Italian governments to learn what assurances may be had that such grain shipments would not be molested in passing through these countries in time of war.

The problem of wheat supply for the Swiss army became acute during the Balkan war, when the closing of the Dardanelles cut off importations from the east, and prices soared tremendously. Emergency shipments from the United States then relieved the situation.

Government Store.—At present the government keeps stores of wheat sufficient to feed the mobilized force of the country, upwards of 300,000 men, for several months. The grain is stored in the capitals of eleven cantons and is never allowed to remain in storage more than three months, supplies being constantly taken out and renewed.

A distinguished officer of the Swiss general staff has advised the government to come to arrangement with neighboring powers on a novel basis. The officer, Dr. Hardy of Geneva, who was a surgeon in the Balkan war, says that all the hotels in Switzerland would have to be turned into hospitals to care for the men and that there are not enough doctors and nurses in the country. The cost in preparation and maintenance for a year would, he estimates, be $35,000,000, and he adds that would be far better for Switzerland to spend the money on the army.

Oil for Paint.—For mixing with paint linseed oil is the one which is most commonly used as an ingredient. Other oils might be tried and the best way to test their relative worth is to mix only a small quantity of paint and test the result. Linseed oil, when pure, is excellent, since it oxidizes and becomes thick on exposure to the air. It may be considered the best of all oils for use in paint, putty and other similar substances.

Strengthens Weak and Tired Women

"I was under a great strain nursing a relative through three months' sickness," writes Mrs. J. C. Van De Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., "and Electric Bitters kept me from breaking down. REDUCTION OF WAGE IN PANAMA RESULTS IN LABOR TROUBLES

Unskilled Labor Unable to Find Work and Scale for Skilled Labor Is Cut, Causing Opposition.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Panama, April 18.—Much opposition to reductions in the wage of skilled labor on the canal has arisen since the new wage scale was promulgated in conformity with an executive order issued by President Wilson on Feb. 2, to become operative on April 1. The skilled workers have been in communication with the parent unions in the United States with the result that the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor has instructed the unions on the isthmus to immediately begin the formation of a Metal Trades council in Panama. Several meetings already have been held at which strong opposition to any wage reduction was voiced.

Adamson Act.—Under the terms of the Adamson act establishing the permanent government of the Panama canal, it is provided that no one on the canal force shall be paid more than 25 percent in excess of the average wage for similar work paid in the United States. In conformity with this provision Col. George W. Goethals, governor of the Panama Canal, issued a circular establishing a new wage scale. This provided for considerable reductions all along the line.

It is understood here that Col. Goethals personally favors the continuation of the present wage scale until the period of construction shall have been ended. If this is done the reductions will become effective gradually and not until after the construction of the canal has been fully completed.

The various labor unions representing the isthmus, it is understood, have communicated or will communicate with their parent organizations with the view of obtaining strike sanction. It is not the immediate intention, according to labor leaders here, to make use of the strike to force the continuation of the present scale, but only in an emergency of such a character as to make its use a necessity.

No Opposition Yet.—It is not anticipated that any opposition to the new wage scale will come from the numerous clerks and other organized employees on the canal force. As yet, no active opposition has appeared among them, although it is said that many of them contemplate resigning and returning to the states and seeking other employment. This class of employees in any event will suffer considerable shrinkage through the gradual reduction in force made necessary by the completion of construction work.

Unemployed Problem.—A serious problem also confronts the authorities of the canal zone and the republic of Panama because of the increasing number of unemployed men. Within the last year many thousands of unskilled canal workers have been thrown upon their own resources because there was no more work for them. In almost every case they have saved no money for a rainy day. They are now faced with an increasing amount of lawlessness, particularly in the line of petty burglaries.

Demand Small.—For unskilled labor there is now absolutely no demand in the isthmus, the outlying provinces of the republic or the neighboring republics of Central and South America. The proposed government railway in the province of Chiriqui is expected to afford some relief, but its construction is early start is not at all bright here.

Prison Labor.—There is little or no construction work in progress. Public work, with the exception of the light house expedition, practically is at a standstill. On the zone the roads are being constructed by the prisoners in the penitentiary. This also is the case in the Panama republic.

Both Panama City and Colon, the two most important cities in the Panama republic, are filled with idle negroes who are looked upon as more or less of a menace by the two police forces. The Panamanian authorities say that the problem is one for solution by the canal government.

The question of the unemployed Jamaican negro is simple. When he left his native shore to come to Panama to work on the canal he was compelled to deposit $5 for his return passage when the job here was done. Many of them, however, do not wish to return for the reason that they are now accustomed to larger wages than they have ever been able to earn in Jamaica. Besides, they say, the island is already over-populated.

Is General.—The question of higher wages and over-population also is true of the other West Indian islands. Then, too, there is at present little or no demand for this class of labor in any of the West Indies with the possible exception of Cuba and Porto Rico, according to information here.

It is anticipated that the entire question probably will have to be submitted to the governments of the various countries from which these laborers came.

Cremate Dead.—Ancon cemetery forms part of the state for the permanent canal government town of Balboa. It has been decided to exhume all the bodies buried there. Already more than 1,000 bodies have been removed, most of them being cremated. Others have been shipped to the states and again buried.

The cremation is progressing at the rate of thirty to forty bodies a day. A total of 4,945 bodies have to be disinterred and cremated.

France to Build.—The French government soon will build a new French legation building in Panama. A large tract of ground has been given to France by the Panama government. It is near the University club, on the seashore, and is regarded as one of the choicest locations in the city. It overlooks the bay toward the Pacific entrance of the canal and the several islands on which are the many fortifications that protect the canal entrance.

MAKE STRONG APPEAL TO JOSEPH CAILLAUX TO RETAIN POSITION

Sensational Shooting of Editor by Madame Cailiaux Fails to Ruin Husband's Career.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Paris, April 18.—Joseph Cailiaux, the leader of the Radical and the Socialist-Radical parties, will not be allowed by his friends to retire from French politics, as he announced he would do the day after his wife shot Gaston Calmette, the editor of the Figaro. M. Cailiaux did withdraw as finance minister from the cabinet he constructed with M. Doumergue as the premier, but he is still constantly consulted by subordinate leaders of the two great groups in the chamber of which he is the chief. And it is understood to be his advice which guides the campaign now going on throughout France for the elections April 26.

Not Responsible.—The first popular impression after the killing of Calmette was that Cailiaux's career was ruined. No one appears to think so now, as it became evident that he could have had nothing whatever to do with causing an act that threw into disorder his far-reaching political plans. The opinion of old parliamentary observers is that the shooting of Calmette is only an incident in the rise of the most powerful politician in France; not the ablest nor the most winning personality in French politics, but the most capable organizer of the forces of discontent and change among that great mass of the people between the extreme Socialists and the moderate conservatives.

Gifted Leader.—Cailiaux is a more gifted organizer probably than any other politician in France and employs every resource of interest and patronage in maintaining his voting machine. It appears that within the last four months nearly one-half of the prefects—the chief civil administrators or governors—of the departments of France, have been replaced by supporters of the ministry. The prefects and deputy-prefects are able to influence greatly district politics.

Has Enemies.—M. Cailiaux's wealth is a subject of gossip. He said on one occasion that he had inherited $300,000 from his father and it is obvious that this sum has grown, for he is a director in various important institutions, among them the Egyptian Credit Foncier, of which he is honorary president, and the Credit Foncier of Argentina, of which he is president. He is sometimes spoken of as worth 50,000,000 francs ($10,000,000), but this probably is exaggerated.

Although a statesman of immense influence, he is also hated and distrusted by the conservative and moderate republican interests. He is represented by his enemies as a sinister figure, one of the most dangerous men of the time. Against that is the view of his supporters that he is a high-minded man who has shown himself too adroit for his adversaries and who have, therefore, recourse to detraction in an effort to break him down.

How much should an automobile weigh?

Suppose that railroads should offer you as an inducement to trust your life in their hands, the argument that the weight of their rolling stock had been reduced to the lowest notch.

Suppose in the locomotive, they make the boiler wall so thin and so light, that it will barely withstand the normal pressure for a limited time.

Suppose they make the trucks, the wheels, and the axles barely strong enough to support the engine under the most favorable conditions.

Suppose they make the connecting rods barely strong enough to turn the wheels.

Then, going back to the cars, suppose they make the trucks, the wheels and the axles no stronger than just enough to carry them a few thousand miles.

Suppose they make the frame barely strong enough to support the body of the car.

Suppose they make the body barely strong enough to hold together.

Suppose they reduce the weight of every vital part to the lowest point—

Would you trust your life in the hands of a railroad which offered you such inducements?

Safety demands strength.
Strength demands material.
Material means weight.

If these be true, then—

Absence of weight must mean absence of material.
Absence of material must mean absence of strength.
Absence of strength must mean absence of safety.

These things apply, whether you have in mind railroads or automobiles.

How much is your safety worth?

Cadillac materials are selected for their adaptability and fitness for the functions and duties which they must perform.

The designs of the various parts are adopted only after they have proven themselves to embody liberal factors of safety.

The Cadillac car will appeal to you because of its strength and its security, rather than upon the basis of lightness.

The Cadillac will appeal to you for its comfort as the luxurious Pullman appeals to you in contrast with the light weight flimsy coach.

The Cadillac will appeal to you for its smoothness and steadiness in running, as the majestic liner is in contrast with the light weight barque in a choppy sea.

The Cadillac will appeal to you because of its sturdiness and its endurance, rather than upon the basis of fragility and impermanence.

Because of its strength, because of its enduring qualities, the Cadillac is an economical car to own and to operate, day-in-and-day-out and year-in-and-year-out.

The Cadillac is economical in fuel.

Hundreds of 1914 Cadillac users are averaging from 15 to 18 miles per gallon of gasoline in every-day service.

Special test runs have been made showing more than 22 miles per gallon, but this cannot be taken as a criterion for the average user.

In the recent test by the Royal Automobile Club of Great Britain, which won for the Cadillac the Dewar Trophy, the 1914 car averaged 17.17 miles per gallon for 1000 miles over give-and-take roads—in spite of frequent stops and starts in testing the electrical cranking device.

It consumed less than one gallon of lubricating oil in traveling the 1000 miles.

Hundreds of users are averaging more than 5000 miles on tires. Some users are reporting from 6000 to 8000 miles and even more.

We believe that in tires, fuel and oil, the 1914 Cadillac will average more mileage than any car which approaches its efficiency.

Because of its standardization, because of the interchangeability of its parts, because of its sturdiness, because of its endurance, the Cadillac has been called The Everlasting Car.

That this appellation is merited, we need but point to the 75,000 Cadillacs produced, all of which to the best of our knowledge are still doing duty, the oldest after eleven years of service—and many of them after having passed the 100,000 mile mark.

How much should an automobile weigh?

It should weigh enough to enable it successfully to perform the duties required of it.

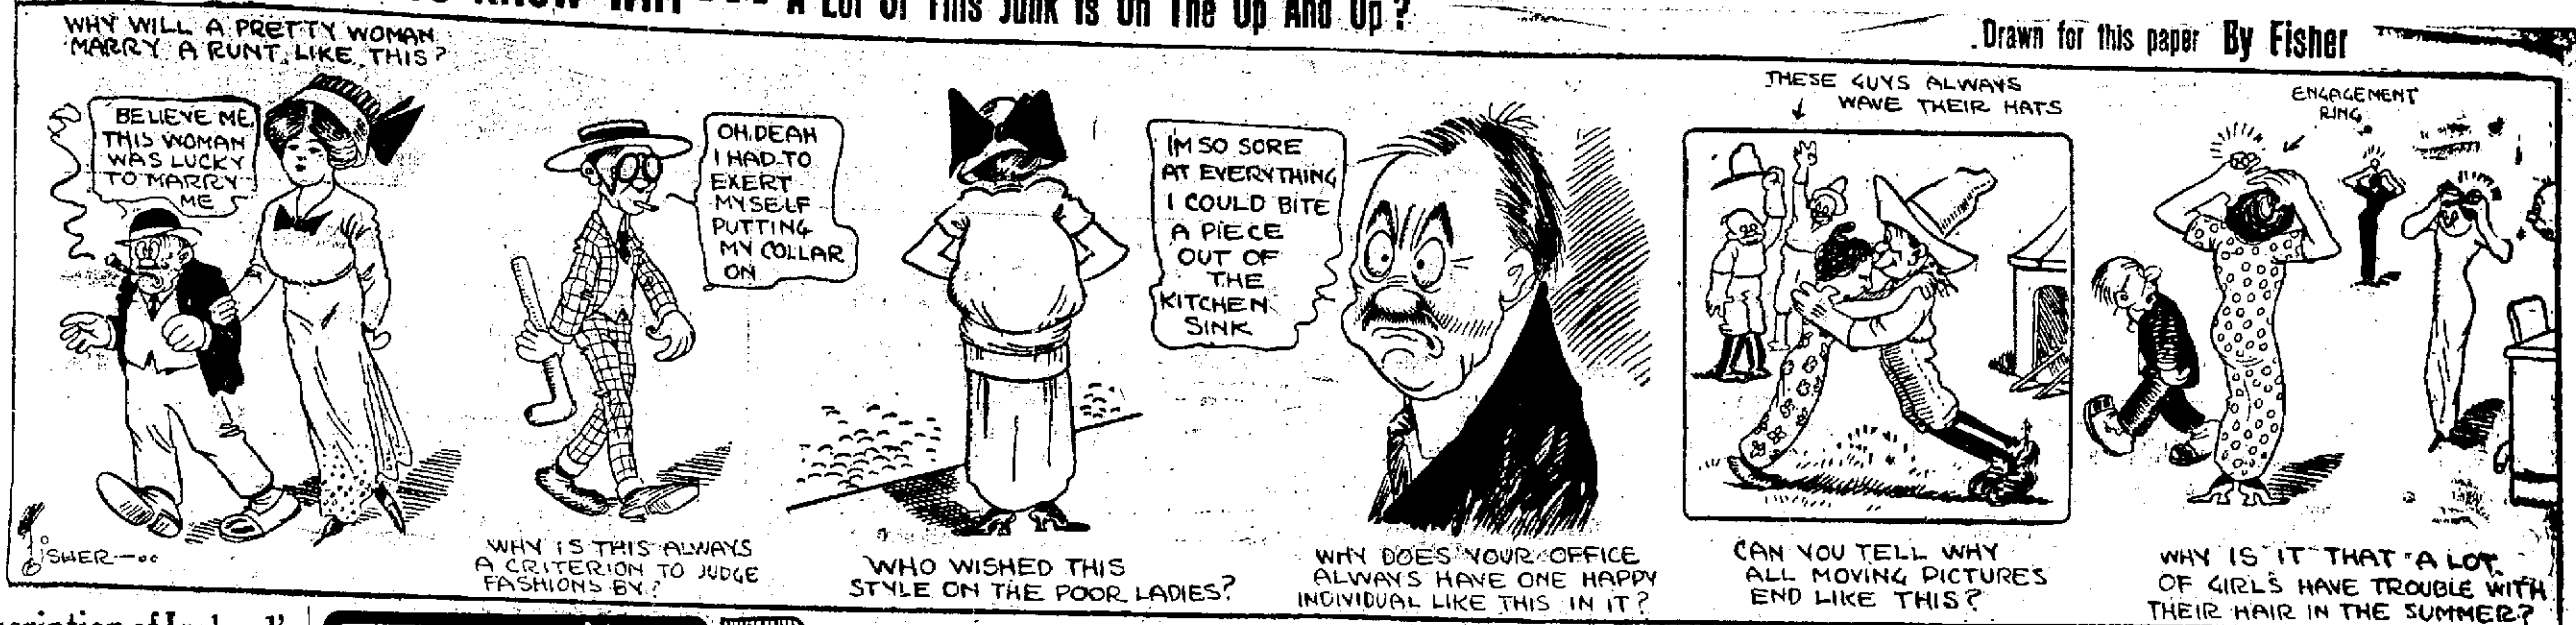

It should weigh enough to enable it successfully to perform those duties day-in-and-day-out and year-in-and-year-out, at a minimum outlay for operation and maintenance, performance and satisfaction considered—and with a minimum depreciation in value after years of service.

DO YOU KNOW WHY --- A Lot Of This Junk Is On The Up And Up?

A Description of Ireland's Great Manufacturing Centre - Some Humorous Incidents Showing the Antagonism of Its Residents Toward Home Rule.

The Famous Ulster Covenant Which Started The Trouble.

Being convinced in our conscience that Home Rule would be disastrous to the material wellbeing of Ulster, as well as to the whole of Ireland, and that it would be a step towards the subversion of our civil and religious freedom, destructive to our citizenship, and perilous to the unity of the Empire.

We whose names are underwritten, men of Ulster, loyal subjects to his Majesty King George the Fifth, humbly relying on the God whom our fathers in days of stress and trial confidently trusted, hereby pledge ourselves in solemn covenant throughout this our time of threatened calamity to stand one by another in defending for ourselves and our children our cherished position of equal citizenship in the United Kingdom, and in using all the means which may be found necessary to defeat the present conspiracy to set up Home Rule in Ireland.

In the event of such a Parliament being forced upon us, we solemnly and mutually pledge ourselves to refuse its authority, insure confidence that God will defend the right.

Hereto we subscribe our names, and further we individually declare that we have not already signed this Covenant.

THE inhabitants of Belfast, that splendid commercial city of the Emerald Isle, have fought Home Rule for over a hundred years, for they began their opposition as soon as they learned that the Irish down in Dublin were fighting for it, and this was away back in 1801, when the Irish Parliament was abolished and the legislative union of Great Britain and Ireland proclaimed. The chief point of issue is a religious one, and the antagonism of the Ulstermen towards the Catholic Church dates back much farther than the Home Rule agitation, for it was already established in 1690, when William came to Belfast—one of the strongholds of the Reformed faith. When the King drove through the streets to Belfast Castle the crowds shouted, "God save the Protestant King!" The same spirit reigns in Ulster today and Belfast Castle which housed the Protestant King in the seventeenth century was the first place given over to the Ulster volunteers. The estate, which stands on a high hill on the outskirts of Belfast, is now owned by Lord Shaftesbury. As is usually the case where religion is an issue both sides have waged a bitter warfare and there has been more or less bloodshed in the agitation. The present crisis seems to have been brought about by the practical certainty of Mr. Asquith's Home Rule Bill becoming a law without the consent of the House of Lords, together with Sir Edward Carson's sudden determination to resist such a Bill for this part of Ireland and the organization of a volunteer army for that purpose.

Descendants of Cromwell. Ulster is inhabited mainly by descendants of the men who were sent to Ireland by Oliver Cromwell as farmers after he had subdued the country and of the Scottish Covenanters. It is these people, descendants of the most rigid Protestants, who have made Belfast and the surrounding counties, and rather than bow to what they term Popish rule they are content to plunge England into a civil war. The animosity between the Catholics and Protestants in Ulster is confined to no special class of people, for it exists in all grades of society from the four hundred down to the humble Scotch-Irish stevedore who has frequently refused to work beside another stevedore because he "hung his hat on a Catholic peg."

Rapid Growth. The City of Belfast is pleasantly situated on the low banks of the River Lagan. A great part of the town is said to be not more than six feet above high water mark, being built on ground reclaimed from the river or the sea. The harbor, originally a creek of the Lagan, has been greatly extended and improved, and is now one of the finest in that part of the world. The picturesque bay is well sheltered by the hills from the north and west winds. It affords a safe anchorage although not altogether free from sand banks. The quays extend for about a mile below Queen's Bridge on both sides of the river. The city is beautifully laid out with wide streets lined on either side with splendid business houses and fine residences. It has the best street car system and the cleanest hotels to be found in all Ireland. Its banks are prosperous, occupying splendid quarters, and its public buildings are imposing, especially the massive City Hall—the scene of so many demonstrations against Home Rule.

Belfast has grown rapidly, especially during the last seventy-five years. In 1841 its population was only a little over seventy thousand;

forty years later it had risen to over two hundred thousand, and in 1911 the census showed it to be a city of nearly four hundred thousand persons. Its growth of property values has been even more remarkable as these have increased ten times over in the same length of time. Belfast is the headquarters of the linen industry of Ireland. The work in these factories is done almost entirely by women and children, over twenty-eight thousand of them being employed and only six thousand men. The wages are low, but the cost of living is far less than it is in the United States. The greater part of the operations can be done by unskilled labor and the conditions under which the work is done are not always the best. Although there is a Child Labor Law it does not seem to be enforced strictly to the letter, for one finds children almost in infancy working in the linen factories. One of the curious clauses of the law is that children under fourteen years of age are allowed to work only three days each week and the other three days they must go to school in compliance with the compulsory education law. The question of the betterment of conditions as to the working of women and children in the factories of the Northern part of Ireland has been a crucial one for several years, and has led to a number of reforms.

The imposing City Hall

Center of Linen Industry.

The linen factories of Belfast are most interesting, for here one may watch the process of linen manufacture from the spinning of the flax until it comes out a finished product, such as handkerchiefs, napkins, tablecloths or linen by the yard.

"You know America is our best customer," said the foreman, "and we nearly always have some particular order on hand for American customers." It is well known that all the linen used on our battleships, at the Naval Academy and at West Point is made in Belfast, and it is no uncommon thing to see a loom at work there turning out linen with the coat-of-arms of the United States woven in the center.

The manufacture of linen in Ireland dates back as far as 1216, when Walter de Burgo, Earl of Ulster, had several webs of linen woven for his household at Ballyiskenney about that time. During the reign of Henry VIII, the spinning of linen and woolen yarns became a leading branch of trade, although it had its first real importance under the Earl of Stafford, who invented about $200,000.00 of his private fortune in the industry. Then came an Act of Parliament for the encouragement of linen manufacture, and the work has been increased to such an extent that about fifty thousand looms are in use at present with over a million spindles. The flax used is nearly all grown in the Ulster provinces.

Home Of Huge Ships.

Belfast has two large shipyards which give employment to twenty-five thousand men, and only a short time ago the "Aquatic," the largest passenger ship in the world, was launched at one of these yards. The "Olympic" was also built at Belfast. The city boasts of a large rope making plant, a number of cigar factories, and the huge manufacturing plant of the famous Belfast ginger ale which is known throughout the world. As in all factory districts a large number of Socialists are to be found, but in the recent agitation the workers seem to have forgotten their views on this subject for hundreds of them enlisted with the Ulster volunteers—to fight Home Rule.

Belfast is an educational centre as well, for even in the days of Lord Macaulay he deemed Queen's College as "worthy to stand in the High Street of Oxford." The number of its students now runs into the thousands and many of the most influential men of Ireland claim it as their Alma Mater. Queen Victoria was greatly beloved, and it was this good and gracious sovereign who in 1892 conferred upon the Mayor of the city for the time being the title of Lord Mayor, and upon the corporation the name and description of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Citizens of the City of Belfast. A beautiful statue of Queen Victoria stands in the center of the city. The Albert Memorial, erected to the memory of the consort of Queen Victoria, is perhaps the most imposing monument of the city, being in the shape of a huge clock tower.

Breathing Spots.

"Breathing spots," as the Ulsterman calls the parks, are numerous—in number and all well kept, especially the Botanical Gardens where some of the most beautiful plants grown in the British Isles are to be found. Belfast is without doubt the cleanest city of Ireland, and has none of the ill-smelling slums such as are to be found in the cities farther south. It has an excellent supply of pure water, a fine sewerage system, and well paved streets—in fact, were it not for the number of jaunting cars to be seen upon its streets the visitor might imagine himself in an up-to-date American city.

Ulsterman is shrewd in business, and while more or less a bigot as far as his religion is concerned, he nevertheless is a good citizen, and loyal subject to the English crown—so loyal that England cannot afford to impose Home Rule upon him, against his consent.

BUSY DAY

BY WILL SEAT.

N the way down to Leamington on the morning train, Mrs. Hibberd Hector refreshed her overtaxed memory by reference to a notebook. As a prominent official of the State Union of Mothers' Clubs she was booked to address the Mothers' Club at Leamington at 3 o'clock, and she had left her very hazy idea of the day's program.

The notebook bore pencil marks meaning to the scribbler—Mrs. Hibberd Hector, herself—but the excellent lady could not read or tell of the frantic scribbles.

She jerked out a head to discover that it bore no resemblance to any other head or tail on the page, and finally in despair she turned the book upside down and that her hieroglyphics really meant anything at all.

"What?" she beamed through her hair at the page. Now, let me see, she arranged that I shall take the train with Mrs. Armstrong—

And name, too. I wonder if I am to be at the Chesley Armstrong. Then I am to address the members at 3 o'clock, hold a reception from 4 to 5 and take the train home. A busy day! Now, the names of the committee so I shall have no difficulty in introducing them when I am introduced better feeling.

Mrs. Armstrong. Mrs. Conrad. Mrs. Daniel Louchier. Mrs. Mayland. she repeated over and over again until the brakeman opened the door and announced

It was a sleepy, sunshiny June day, and down the crooked length of Leamington street the merchants sat before their shops and talked about the weather and the fishing and the tides. The summer boarder season had not yet opened and business was dull.

There was one stuffy looking stage at the railroad station and Mrs. Hibberd Hector had glanced once within its musty depths and with a shrug of her shoulders decided to walk down the long hill into the village.

Her dignity was offended that the Mothers' Club had not sent some sort of an equivoque to meet her train and then it suddenly and unpleasantly occurred to her that she had neglected to send word, naming her train.

She picked up the skirt of her summer silk, opened her parasol and after inquiring the way she walked down to the bay, blue and shimmering under a cloudless sky, and so reached a large, white house set in the midst of green lawns, very cool and pleasant and comfortable looking. She rang the bell and then waited the minutes passed. No one answered her summons.

As she sank exhausted into a porch chair a double-seated carriage drove into the yard and the sole occupant, evidently a farm hand, looked curiously at her. He drew up before the door. "You looking for Mrs. Armstrong?" he asked.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Hibberd Hector. "Well, she ain't home. She's gone down to the Point with the children—the Mothers' Club's having a picnic down there."

Mrs. Hibberd Hector thought rapidly, it was possible that the club had changed its plan and was to entertain her at the Point—that would have been very pleasant indeed on this day. With a sudden return of enthusiasm in the day's project she beamed upon the man.

"I wonder if you couldn't drive me down to the Point?" she said sweetly. "Mrs. Armstrong expects me, but I didn't send word what train I would take, so there was no one to receive me. I have to return to town on the 6:10 train."

As they drove through shady woods, fragrant with sassafras and a hundred other elusive odors, Mrs. Hibberd Hector settled back in her seat and once more referred to her notebook. She had chosen for the subject of her address a topic that was not her enthusiastic heart.

Mrs. Hibberd Hector had never been a mother, but she knew just how children should be trained to get the best out of them and to insure their getting the best out of life. "How to hold your child's love" was to be her subject, and Mrs. Hector had carefully and conscientiously studied over the matter of preventing the country children from flocking to the cities, and she was quite ready to tell the Mothers' Club of Leamington all about it.

Suddenly the road emerged from the wood and dipped down into a hollow between the bluffs where was a white sandy beach and the bay.

"It's hard to turn around down there, ma'am. If you don't mind getting out," suggested the driver apologetically, and Mrs. Hector alighted and pressed a crackling greenback into his reluctant hand and followed his direction down the road to the beach where he said she would find the Mothers' Club in session. There were voices and much laughter and the tinkle of crockery mingled with the rush of the incoming tide as Mrs. Hibberd Hector in all the glory of her summer apparel went down the road to the beach. All at once she paused and drew into the shadow of a beach-plum tree and stared

If this was a meeting of the Mothers' Club—it was informal indeed! Scattered over the sands or playing in the water were a score of children in bathing suits, happy-looking, sun-burned healthy-looking boys and girls. Farther up the beach in the shade of several wind-blown cedars, a dozen women were engaged in spreading a picnic meal.

There, too, were garbed most informally in bathing dresses of every

"Mrs. Armstrong?" she asked sweetly.

From the group of startled women there came a tall, well-proportioned young woman with a calm self-possessed manner and steady gray eyes that searched Mrs. Hibberd Hector's handsome countenance with puzzled inquiry in their depths. She wore her bathing dress with unconscious grace and she held out a slender, sun-tanned hand to the visitor.

MRS. HECTOR.

description and they were gay and laughing and thinking of everything else except Mrs. Hibberd Hector when she walked into their midst, charmingly groomed, smiling tolerantly, yet with an air of offended dignity pervading her whole bearing. Never before had this high official of the State Union of Mothers' Clubs been so received when she honored an organization with her presence.

"How do you do?" she asked courteously.

"I am Mrs. Hibberd Hector," explained that lady. "I rather expected—a different sort of reception, you know, dear Mrs. Armstrong. More formal, you know!"

"Of course you would have received it, Mrs. Hector," said Mrs. Armstrong quietly. "If we had expected you today, I assure you we have made every preparation for tomorrow."

"Tomorrow?" repeated Mrs. Hibberd Hector feeling for her notebook and adjusting her hair. "I'm sure the date was for today—the 28th—dear me, I can't tell whether this is an eight or a nine—so provoking!" She peered near-sightedly at her own hieroglyphics.

"Your date was for the 28th—I am so sorry you have been inconvenienced, Mrs. Hector; but it is not too late for us to arrange the meeting for this afternoon. There are some details of the entertainment that will be lacking, but our welcome will be just as cordial and we shall enjoy your talk. Let me present the members of our Mothers' Club."

Mrs. Hibberd Hector gracefully shook hands with the members of the Mothers' Club and remembered the names, too. They were a hearty, handsome looking lot of women, women, too, she admitted to herself, and they looked as if they had already solved some of the problems over which she still knitted her brows.

When it was suggested that they all return to Leamington and hold the meeting as planned, and as worthy of their honored guest, Mrs. Hibberd Hector vetoed the idea and offered to talk to them there on the beach after the luncheon was served.

It was an unusual occasion for Mrs. Hibberd Hector and she gravely unbent to meet these simple-hearted well-mannered women on their own ground. She was persuaded to don an extra bathing dress that had been brought along and she, too, snored in the rising tide and became intimately acquainted with more children in an hour than she had ever done in her life before.

Mrs. Hibberd Hector submitted to being ducked under the water; Mrs. Hector played duck-on-a-rock and learned to skip flat stones on the water.

All this happened after the picnic meal, where there were clams and green corn roasted then and there and all sorts of good things prepared by these women who knew how to be mothers in so many different ways that Mrs. Hibberd Hector's theories were all knocked askew.

After the meal had been disposed of and all of the mothers and children and honored guest, had departed in the water, they emerged a dripping company and seated themselves on the beach.

"Now, Mrs. Hector," said the president, with an arm around each of her two children, "if you will pardon the extreme informality of the meeting, we would be honored to have you address us."

There was gentle hand clapping and they all looked at the honored guest, who had quite forgotten to remove her bathing cap. From under its rim there peered a small brown curl, escaped from its confinement.

Mrs. Hibberd Hector looked around at the audience assembled to hear her, at their quiet well-behaved children, all watching her expectantly, gravely, and suddenly her subject, "How to Hold Your Child's Love," appeared unavailing before these women who had already discovered the secret.

All at once a little 2-year-old girl who had been watching the honored guest with silent admiration, toddled over to Mrs. Hector and bent a round and rosy face to hers. "I'd like to kiss that tunning 'tittle turl,'" she announced, and forthwith did kiss it, to find herself wrapped close in the embrace of Mrs. Hibberd Hector.

"Ladies," she said in a muffled voice, "pray excuse me from addressing you—my subject was chosen in ignorance and I have learned more in this brief hour than I could teach you in a lifetime!"

A PICTURESQUE SIX-ROOM HOUSE—By John Henry Newson

"Home of Character" No. 170

This house is an inexpensive but artistic home and one that bespeaks refinement and picturesqueness. The general color scheme is brown and white, while the roof is in black slate. The porch columns are carried in a very light manner with neatly cut corbels under the beams supporting the porch roof. The upper story is in shingles and the lower story in ordinary lap siding.

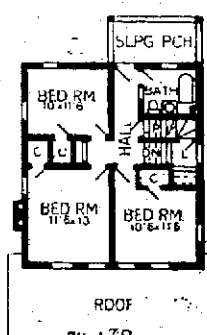

FIRST FLOOR

The floor plan is a more elaborate arrangement of a six-room house than is contemplated in No. 149-A. The kitchen has a grade landing entrance to cellar with combination stairway to the second floor, and the second floor has a sleeping porch over the kitchen porch and ice room, with an entrance off the hall to same. The bedrooms are of ample size, with windows and other openings arranged with supreme regard to the location of furniture. The kitchen is larger than that of No. 149-A and necessary kitchen equipment.

The cost of this house 24x28 feet as shown was $3,000. By economy in construction and under favorable building conditions this cost might be reduced to $2,500. In no case should the cost run over $3,300.

Any Gazette reader who desires further information concerning No. 170 should address "John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Gazette." There will be no charge for Mr. Newson's answers.

Be Ready For the Fly

Flies—the pest of pests—will soon try to spoil your comfort and peace at home.

Are you going to let them in by the thousands—with their filth and disease? Are you going to exhaust yourself and your patience in useless "shooing" and "swatting"?

The quicker way, the easier way, cleaner, wiser way is to

Tightly Screen Every Door and Window

Keep the flies out. A fly on the outside is better than a fly on the inside—alive or dead.

Don't wait 'til fly time before you screen your home. Do it now. And to do it right, come to us.

We can furnish you screens of any style in regular sizes or made to order—all of them good quality, strong, neat and durable. Our prices will please you, too.

Our representative will gladly call at your home, tell you about our screens, take measurements and make your home fly proof. He is busy beating the fly.

More Hot Water at a Low Cost For Fuel

We all know that laundrying, cleaning, bathing, in fact, nearly every phase of home life, is dependent upon a plentiful hot water supply, and that the ease with which these various functions are performed depends to a greater degree on the efficiency of your hot water services. Quicker hot water without fuss, troubles or worry, can be had by connecting a Ruud Circulating Double Coil Heater to your boiler; the simple lighting of a match and a turn of the valve starts the heater in operation; in a few minutes you have plenty of scalding hot water available at any faucet in the house.
